Kristine Claire,

Well, I wish I could say it's been a great year, but it hasn't. We have both gone to different schools and met new people, but I wish I could go to VHS. I really miss you where I live. Sometimes I wish you could go to my school, it would be so much fun, we need some excitement and laughter at Corona. I'm very glad we are (great) best friends (even though I am short! 5'2") we will never be sepearated, we may be apart, but not seperated. I hope you get to come to AZ some day, you can check(✓) out Tempe. Have fun at VHS and Good Luck with your future! (Maybe I'll ☺☺ see you at UCD!

The style of the 80's was all around us. Everywhere one looked one could find a unique spectacle of some shape or form. If it wasn't the sights of the flourescent clothing or the New Wave haircuts, it was the sound of the different 80's rap that only we could understand.

Style was reflected in everthing most of us did. The way we walked, talked, and acted depended somewhat on what the style was.

New fads appeared frequently. Some were readily accepted and some were tossed out almost before they started. One favorite fad was the fluorescent colored outfits. Bright green, orange, and pink clothing stood out, seen even in the largest of crowds!

Hair contributed its fair share to the 80's style. Short, long, or both: greased back with mousse, styling gels or even eggs- there was an endless supply of possibilities!

Long nails were all around the school in assorted colors, shapes and sizes. Were they real or were they fake? Nails ranged in price from $3.00 to $48.00! No matter the price, shape or color, they could be very destructive.

From the B-52's to Lionel Richie, music was definitely "in". Every band had its own style. Many set the pace for the year's fashions. Because of the popularity of video channels, bands were now seen as well as heard. What changes would the future hold for television? We would have to wait and see!

As the threat of nuclear war became more of a possibility, movies, T.V. and stories educated us about what World War III would be like. Television sitcoms were going out of style while more serious shows worked their way into the fall lineups.

Hairstyles, fashion, music, and fads were sure to change, but the style of the 80's left an immpression on us that would last forever.

Guys, girls, movies, music, clothes and cars are just a few of the things that add up to STUDENT LIFE. Everything affects student life in one way or another. Movies affect one's thoughts, and guys and girls affect just about everything in general.

The life of a student is a very complicated ordeal that each and every one of us must endure. Fringed with good times and a few black clouds, student life cannot be classified as anything less than interesting.

Student life at Vaca High was just that, interesting. With the start of a new year came all the neon colors imaginable. From chartreuse to cerise, neons were all around us. As much as clothes were a form of expression, so were lockers. From Garfield to Dio, Vaca High's lockers were adorned with every aspect of student life.

It seemed as though the past year was a year for originallity and non-conformity. It seemed as though Vaca High students did not want to conform to what many would call every day life. Instead many students enjoyed portraying their favorite solo music artist or band. Air Guitar hit it big in Vacaville. The students of Vacaville High School on one hand appeared to be alike in their infatuation with the fad of air guitar, but on the other hand they again showed their individuality by the variety of bands which they portrayed. Whether it was Prince or Twisted Sister, Heavy Metal or New Wave, the air guitar contest was enjoyed by all.

In all of this, there was one thing that everyone did have in common. This was probably the most important thing of all- friends. Friends are what make student life interesting, fun, and worthwhile. What fun would 4-wheeling or a pizza party be without friends? Friends, added to everything else around us, made student life very exciting.

"6:00 a.m. Time to get up!", your alarm clock screamed with joy. Why did school have to start so soon? Summer had ended. The 2:00 a.m. nights and 2 p.m. mornings came to a screaching halt. Getting up must have been the most difficult part of school.

"Early to bed and early to rise", was a common saying most Vaca High students disagreed with. Just the thought of having to hit the sack without watching Johnny Carson or Late Night Videos sent chills up one's spine.

Getting up was not the only disappointing factor of the beginning of school. We musn't forget those endless hours of sitting in a hot class watching the clock tick away. You restlessly awaited that moment, the ringing of the bell allowing you to hit the halls and talk about the latest summer gossip. Who likes who? Who broke up? Who went where with whom?

In no time at all you were back in the swing of things. Homework and early rising was a way of life.

Some messy, some clean, tall, square or in between. Yep! You guessed it! We're talking about the hall lockers at Vaca High. From plain gray to shocking pink, covered with pictures of their favorite rock stars or cutouts from magazines, each locker showing the individuals personality of each student.

At times lockers can be a pain, especially when you can't find your Math 60 book under all your chemistry papers; or when you have to run back to your locker before the bell rings, only to find it jammed closed.

However, there is a sunny side to having a locker. For instance, try to imagine having to carry all your books around school, or not having a place to meet with your friends before your next class.

Lockers are a big part of high school life. If only they could talk. Oh, the stories they could tell!

HOMECOMING: Start with a dash of sunshine, gusty winds and a few scattered clouds. Add a few hundred students already bored with the mundane ways of school life. What do you get? "Homecoming 85!"

Monday, October 8, started the fun with Hawaiian Day. Students sported their favorite grass skirts, moo-moos, and Hawaiian print shirts. During lunch there was an exciting lei race. The attendants; sophomore, Darcy Purdy; junior, Jodi Santoni; and senior, Danielle Knox, attempted to place lei's around any classmate's neck. As expected the seniors won with the sophomores and juniors trying in vain to keep up.

Tuesday was Rock Day. Students were to dress like their favorite rock stars. The lunchtime activities included performances from the best of air guitar players. Some of the favorite songs were Rebel Yell, When Doves Cry, and Love on Our Side.

Wednesday transformed students from their usual outfits into more fitting attire. Seniors dressed in Togas, juniors as gangsters, and sophomores as nerds. (of course).

HIGHLIGHTS

When Thursday arrived, the masters were ready and waiting to humiliate their slaves purchased earlier in the week. Slaves were subjected to various types of ridicule ranging in form from singing in the halls, to toting books to class, and anything else their masters demanded.

At last it was Friday, Game day! The Bulldogs were set for the match against our rivals, the Fairfield Falcons. As gametime approached tension was felt in the air. After a tough game our Junior Varsity lost. Fortunately our Varsity made up for it with a 41-14 victory over the Falcons. Besides the game itself, the main attraction was halftime. After brilliant performances by the Vaca High Drill Team and Pom Pon's, the time was set for the long awaited announcement of the year's homecoming queen. As the queen candidates arrived in the traditional limousines the crowd held its breath. The suspense came to an end as last year's queen Chantelle Landaiche named Kym Collins the Homecoming Queen for 1985! The queen's court consisted of princesses Augusta Goreham and Michelle Vest. The trio made a stunning scene along with their escorts Dave George, Drew Wyant, and Mark Johnson.

Another year, another homecoming, but this year's homecoming was sure to leave fond memories that could be remembered on for many years to come!

FUN TIMES

Slaves singing in the hallway, teachers portraying their favorite (or not so favorite) student- these are just a few of the fun times spent at Vacaville High School.

Students enjoy those days when they come dressed as someone other than themselves. Dressing up as their favorite rock star or for a Hawaiian Luau was a pleasant change from the day to day look. Some students had the fun of buying slaves and making them dress up in some sort of silly attire.

Football games are great times to get together with friends and just hang around having a fun time. Once in awhile a cheer reminds us that something else is going on.

Even though you may hate to admit it, Room 6 has its good times. Holding in your laughter while your friend is making funny faces or trying to pass a note without getting caught can sometimes be quite exciting.

Years from now when we look back on the time we spent at Vaca High we will remember the fun times.

THE AFTER LIFE

Faces eagerly awaiting for the second hand to strike the hour. Finally the bell rings at 2:20. Students shuffle out of classrooms. School is out! Many kids run to their lockers, tell their friends to call them, then run to catch the buses. Others figure out what they have for homework, then run to their cars in order to catch the end of their favorite soap opera.

Then, there are the few who just like to linger around the school because home doesn't sound too good to them yet.

Of course, we can always find a few sitting in a classroom after the final bell has rung. During the day they found it hard to get to class on time so they must pay the price of a fifteen minute detention.

Last, we see the athletes, cheerleaders, and drillteam, practicing and preparing for their upcoming events.

No matter what the Vaca High students are doing after the final bell, they are all elated to be through for the day.

When I'm feeling lonely
Or when I'm feeling down
My friends are there to help me
To put me on solid ground.

They're with me when I'm happy,
They're with me when I'm sad.
I don't know what I'd do
If myself was all I had.

I know they'll always be there,
Whenever I need a hand,
A shoulder to cry on, an ear to lend
They let me know I can.

I wish they all could hear this
So they'd know that I care too.
If there were words to tell them now
They would be I LOVE YOU

Trivia has taken the country by storm and the game Trivial Pursuit is the reason why. Trivial Pursuit has been called the game of the year by many people. Trivia games are played on the radio and television, but the most widely used version is the game itself.

The game of Trivial Pursuit consists of 6,000 different questions to test your wit and wisdom. For example: What is the capitol of Syria? Answer- Damascus. Or what were millions of kids wearing on their heads in 1955? Answer- Davy Crockett Coonskin Caps! The questions are arranged in six catagories- Arts & Literature, Science, Sports & Leasure, Geography, Entertainment, and History.

With all these questions, and new catagories being written all the time, this game is sure to keep us all in Pursuit for many years.

SMACKIN' GOOD

Sweat dripping from your brow after a long day of lectures and tests. Open the refrigerator door, past the orange juice, behind the mayonnaise jar, there it is! The vision you have been thinking about the whole way home. Left over pizza from the night before, cherry cheesecake, Doritos and a coke. What a meal to come home to!

Yes, teenagers spend half their time consuming all different types and tastes of food.

Besides the ordinary fast food restaurant, many other food places have become quite popular among the "younger" crowd.

Who can resist mountainous spaghetti and "all the works" pizza from Pietro's. Just think of the sauce, the piled high noodles, pepperoni, sausage, olives, cheese of every kind. All packed together, and OH!! The aroma it leaves in the air. Mmmm!!

Murillo's is another "hot spot!" First the tortilla chips and hot sauce. Then, a chicken avocado tostada, guacamole, beans and rice. All of this washed down with eight glasses of water.

A meal would not be complete without dessert. The favorite among kids of all ages, is ice-cream. Move over plain vanilla, here comes Baskin-Robbin's Quarterback-Crunch, Banana Nut, Double Chocolate Fudge, or maybe a banana split. I'll have extra nuts . . . and oh a topping? I'll have chocolate . . . wait, strawberry . . . no caramel . . . but wait pineapple sounds scrumptious too! Ah Heck! I'll have them all!!!!

◀▲ Baskin Robins ice cream, everyone's all time favorite.
◀▲ Banana Splits, "Finger licken good!"
▲▲ Pietro's with another mouth watering meal.
◀ Another one of Vaca Cheese and Deli's great ham sandwiches.

BOP 'TIL YOU

Video screens, flashing lights, loud music, and a beat that keeps you movin'. Sound familiar? It should! The Eruption is the hottest addition to Vacaville's hangouts.

During the summer months most Vaca High students enjoyed spending their nights shimmying to the hottest soul and new wave music.

If you were an avid listener of soul music, Friday night was the night for you. If you preferred more of the new wave upbeat then you would fit in best on Wednesday night. But if you were caught in the middle and enjoyed both then you were sure to keep Saturday nights open.

Once school started, the schedule was changed. Friday was for the breakers and Saturday was for the new wave boppers.

BUDDY SYSTEM

A laughing smile to cheer you, a sympathetic ear to hear your problems, these are the things you can count on when you have a friend.

A funny experience or an embarrassing moment could never be quite the same unless it's shared with a friend.

Friends help pass the time of agonizing and sometimes confusing school days. You will probably forget many things that you learned in school, but one thing you will never forget is your friends.

When a friend is around, you may feel a little braver. Playing a practical joke or just goofing around would never be the same or quite as funny if a friend were not around.

Troubles seem to fade away when a friend is there to console you. Just talking one-to-one makes you feel a lot better. Often, somehow, problems that you thought were so great turn out to be small. Friends are forever.

SLAPPIN'

A thundering crash, then another! There's no way out! Suddenly a shower of dirt clods comes flying towards you stopped only by a few centimeters of shatterproof glass. This scene is describing that exciting new craze called 4-Wheelin!! One can recognize the 4-Wheelin fans at Vaca High by their mud coated trucks. Why is it so popular? Maybe it's the feeling of being airborne for those few seconds that seem an eternity. Or, it could be the feeling of power that comes from maneuvering a vehicle up treacherous mountains, through pools of mud, over rocks, tree stumps, or anything potentially destructive to a 4-Wheelin vehicle!!

While participating in this event, it would be a smart idea to wear seat belts! Gary Stratton summed it up when he said, "Better to be safe than sorry!" Chris Ring added "I KNOW!"

Of course a major set back to a day of 4-Wheelin fun would be getting stuck in six feet of murky mud! Gary, are you listening???

WINTER

Winter Festival of 1985 went off with a bang. It all began Wednesday, February 6 and ended Saturday the 9th. To promote school spirit the students were asked to dress up in special festive attire. Wednesday, students went racing down the halls in their favorite ski wear. Thursday arose and kids wore their sweatshirts representing different colleges. Friday quickly crept around the corner and you saw all the "sweethearts" and "best buddies," dressed up in their matching attire.

Friday certainly didn't end there. The excitement mounted as the day progressed, for that night was the night which the announcement of the King was revealed during the halftime of the basketball game. As was homecoming, the students elected one person from their class, then the entire student body nominated the senior they felt best suited the position of King. The only difference was hat the Winter Festival court consisted only of guys, except the girls whom they asked as escorts. The Sophomore Knight was Darren Wright; Junior Knight, Scott Lopez and Senior Knight, Carl Cances.

The three nominees for Winter Festival King were Brian Sisneros, Brad Tyrell and Drew Wyant. Tension filled the air as the Knights and their escorts were introduced. Then the King nominees and their escorts all walked to the center of the floor. The announcement was made, the winner was Drew Wyant.

Saturday was the dance. The dance was enjoyed by all, it was the perfect way to end a fun-filled week.

GLAMO

Stars glistened from a shimmering archway. The sounds of music, laughter, and good times greeted your ears. Tuxedos and formal gowns, everyone was dressed in their best attire. It was the CHRISTMAS BALL of 1984!

The Vacaville Community Center was transformed into a "Winter Wonderland" for the evening with red, white, and silver. A christmas tree stood in the corner and tables of food lined the wall. The preparations by the Junior class were hard and tedious, yet they payed off with each smiling face as people began to arrive.

As one stepped through the arch, the Christmas magic began. Couples glided onto the dance floor enjoying the music and each others company. Memories were made and then preserved in photographs by Mary Cornelison. The room was filled with the spirit of Christmas.

Emotions were high as the Ball came to a close. The lights dimmed and the last song, Purple Rain, began to play. As the last notes faded away, the Christmas Ball became part of the past, but the memories would last forever.

ROUS LIFE

CHRISTMAS OF

Did you ever wonder about Christmas in Oz? Or a Christmas that was completely reversed? These and others were found during Mr. Carrington's class's annual Christmas party. The Christmas in Oz scene involved Dorthy, Toto and all the Oz characters, including the evil flying monkeys that are written about in the book by Baum. "Reverse Christmas" was a scene that rearranged a lot of traditional things about Christmas that are taken for granted. Other scenes were titled "Russian Christmas", "Santa's Workshop", and "What is Christmas . . . REALLY?!"

The classes worked for up to eight and a half hours during the night before the party, setting up the props and decorations in the Little Theatre. A live band and a D.J. were present to make the party a success.

Mr. Carrington's Algebra II, period two class took first place with their "Christmas in Oz" theme. Everyone enjoyed the party as well as setting up for it. It made for a memorable Christmas!!

ANOTHER KIND

Hail to the

Mr. Zunino - one of his relaxing moments

Almighty Z

Teaching, coaching and owning a garbage company are just a few of Mr. Zunino's jobs. Mr. Zunino has been teaching at Vaca High School for 24 years and coaching for 25. He has coached wrestling, baseball and, of course, football.

Coach Z, as he is better known, has a special style of coaching that is greatly respected all around Northern California. Coach Zunino works with each of his player's individual talents and brings out the best in them all. During his reign as Vaca High's head football coach the football teams have won three M.E.L. championships and been in three play-off berths.

While coaching at Vaca High, Coach Z has had many outstanding players come through the ranks. One of the most recent and notable players is Vince Newsome. Vince started for Z for three years. After high school, Vince went on to play for University of Washington and then on to the Anahiem Rams. Not all of Mr. Z's players can go on to play pro-ball but having a player that came through the reign of Coach Zunino makes the dream even closer.

This year is the Silver Jubilee of Coach Zunino's coaching career. We at Vaca High have been honored by his coaching abilities for a quarter of a century and hope that he will give us many more years of great football teams in the years to come.

From football to baseball, volleyball to swimming: sports play an important role in high school life. Through athletics, students learn the values of unity and teamwork. Such values cannot always be obtained in a classroom setting. The field or court is transformed into its own "classroom" when the team members step out for yet another practice. A coach is molded into a teaching figure whose purpose is to show the meaning of togetherness.

Many great teams were born at Vacaville High School this past year. Varsity Football showed their stuff and proved they were the team to beat. Varsity Volleyball excelled over all others spiking their way to victory. Soccer kicked away any team that might have stood in their way. In addition, Cross Country left their opponents in the dust. Vacaville High School made a name for itself due to it's highly skilled and well perfected teams.

Dreams came to life this past year. For many of the team members, goals were achieved and new goals were set for the years ahead. The coaches had the privilege of seeing their long hours of hard work pay off through victory after victory.

The team members learned an everlasting lesson of friendship, togetherness and unity. This lesson could be shared with others to assist in the betterment of Vacaville High School. Through the actions of the athletes and through their victories, other students would learn the values of unity and school spirit- a lesson that would help them through life, a lesson never to be forgotten.

J.V. FOOTBALL FIGHTS TO WIN

Wary but hopeful, the Vacaville High School Junior Varsity Football team set out in an attempt to achieve their goals. The team worked hard, suffering tough practices every day. They set their sights high, hoping to compete at a high level in the Monticello Empire League.

The team started off the season with a victory defeating Stagg 21-7. Then the pups suffered a few minor setbacks. They may not have always won but they played to win. As Eric Cavaliere put it, "Our team plays well together. We pulled together as a team quickly. Every game we've been right there. Our closeness has always been a big factor and has helped a great deal."

When asked how he felt about the teams progress, Coach Green replied, "We've suffered some setbacks, and endured some adversity, but we are working very hard to improve. The players have shown a good deal of courage and togetherness through some hard times."

Coach Green is doing a good job of preparing his "pups" for an even bigger step- becoming a "DOG".

BULLDOGS BREAK LOOSE

"Bulldogs on the move", "Vacaville cruises on Homecoming", "Vaca pummels Fairfield 41-14". These are just a few of the newspaper headlines that expressed the Bulldog victories and showed everyone what "The Dogs" were made of.

This year's football team started off good and kept getting better. The team looked unified and the plays were polished. The Bulldogs weren't going to take anything from anybody. When it seemed the game was lost, the "Dogs" came back in full force to win. Despite three losses, the Bulldogs fought hard till the end. They fell short of the M.E.L. playoffs by one game.

Mr. Zunino was quite proud of his team. He said, "The Bulldogs had an outstanding season, they did not play one bad game." He said there were only a few bad plays that were very costly. These six plays were perhaps what cost them an undefeated season.

"Every team we played was afraid of our defense.", said Scott DeGracia. "Our defense was what kept us in the game."

When asked how he felt about the entire season, Pat Vandeburgh summed it all up by saying, "We were a hell of a team; we were excellent! We should have been in the playoffs, it's just too bad."

The Bulldogs have left their name in the Monticello Empire League. This team is tough, awesome, mean and ready for a win. Beating them was no easy task. There was no stopping the Bulldogs after they got started.

Good Luck in the years to come. Bulldog fans will be watching you with admiration.

VARSITY SOCCER STEALS THE SHOW

The varsity soccer team didn't consist of only a few good players. The team was exactly that, a team. As Bob Evanosky put it, "We're a team off the field as much as we are on the field." Maybe this tight bond between the players was one of the reasons that the Vaca High team played such superb soccer. Coach Chuck Korman was extremely proud of his sixteen players, as he put it, "I'm very proud of them, not only as individuals, but also as a team. They've shown the highest level of committment, unity, and competitive spirit. A coach couldn't ask for more." Coach Korman also added that the team had suffered more setbacks and more problems off the field this past year than ever. Yet, they bounced back, striving and more dedicated. "They're the highest achievers I've ever had as a team," he stated. All the hardwork and dedication paid off, the team made it to the playoffs. Sean Lenihan stated, "We're a strong team and next year, with seven returning players as well as the J.V.'s, I feel we'll have a good chance at taking the championship." Whether or not the team took the championship does not matter; with positive thinking, superb ability, and extraordinary team spirit the Vaca High Varsity Soccer Team will succeed.

J.V. SOCCER
KICK AND GO

Outstanding, spectacular, and hard-working - these were just a few of the adjectives used to describe the Vacaville High School Junior Varsity Soccer Team. During the past year the JV soccer players succeeded in winning out over Napa. Determination and an abundance of self-confidence were needed in pulling off that victory. Napa felt the agony of falling to the Vacaville JV's for the first time in 3 years. When the game was over, Napa was just one of the many victories the Vaca JV'S had tucked under their belt.

Some of the JV's that made special contributions to the team were Mike Cano, Victor Zaval, Jeff Harris, and especially Coach Alturo Reyes. Varsity Soccer Coach Chuck Korman stated, "This year's JV team shows exceptional skill and team play. I am looking forward to seeing them perform on the varsity squad next year." Coach Reyes was understandably proud of his team. The Vaca JV's had one of their best seasons ever.

BULLDOGS RUN WILD

Endurance, stamina, and the willingness to put forth the best effort possible were all qualities found in this past year's cross country runners. Sore muscles and near exhaustion paid off in a most rewarding way for the Vaca High Cross Country Team, who were undefeated expect for the invitationals.

Cross country isn't one of the more widely followed sports, but that doesn't detract from the efforts put forth by its participants. This year's runners put in long hard hours, everyday. They pushed themselves to the limits of their abilities in order to make this season one to remember.

The runners themselves will most likely remember the grueling 800 meter warm ups, and distance conditioning at Pena Adobe. Everyone else will remember the cross country team that helped to make 1984 one of the most incredible years, athletically speaking , in the history of the school. Who could forget the thril of the boys' team attending Norcal, or the agony the girls' team must have felt when they missed qualifying by two points. Overall, their winning season will long linger in the minds of all.

VOLLEYBALL GOES FOR GOLD

1984 was a 12-0, undefeated year for the Vaca High Varsity Volleyball Team. It was their best year ever. This was due to the close relationships between the team members both on and off the court.

Jeep Mendes, Vaca High's setter (the "quarterback") made huge contributions to the team effort that brought such sweeping victories. Devina Sloan, was considered the best spiker in Vaca High's history.

This was the Lady Bulldogs' second year to have a secret pals program. They started the morale boosting program before the Napa game. The sense of closeness generated from having secret pals may have given the extra incentive to defeat Napa, their age-old rivals. Napa was undefeated this year until Vaca High's spikers hit them. The Lady Bulldogs broke Napa's three year championship record.

Working hard and putting time and energy into this season helped the volleyball team to earn their success. Three hours per day, since August 20, were spent perfecting the eleven team members' skills. This season demonstrated how they "threw" themselves into the sport.

The seniors will be missed. This past year's juniors were very important to the team and are sure to be "bad" competition next year. So to all the teams who have yet to play Vaca High next season, "good luck!" Vaca High has one tough Varsity Volleyball team. These ladies play only to win.

Bullpup Volleyball

Coach Judy Wettstein is a strong advocate of women's sports! "There were no sports for girls when I was in school and I'm glad they're finally beginning to believe in themselves," said Coach Wettstein. She has been the girls volleyball coach for the past four years, encouraging as many girls as possible to get involved in sports of all types, and to Sophomore girls, she gives an added incentive.

The girls from Junior High were willing and eager to learn, but they developed a few bad habits that needed rectifying first. Both the girls and Coach Wettstein spent their two and a half hour practices working towards perfection. All the girl combined their efforts and as a whole overcame the obstacles that stood i their way.

A major new strategy was introduce to the team this year. No other Junio Varsity team in the entire league used backcourt switch, that required th backcourt to switch positions after th ball was served. The new strategy wa worth the risks because it made th team strong. The team members wer indispensible. Together, they pulle their weight and established friendship The bond they created will always b strong.

WRESTLING MEANS VICTORY

League Championship is a definite priority for Vaca wrestlers. Their main goal, however, is to improve their skills, reach their peak athletic abilities, and learn standard as well as new wrestling techniques. Bulldog competitions are always marked with that "air of tension" and the meets of '84 and '85 were no exception.

Strict diets and vigorous exercise routines were a major part of wrestling for the Vaca Team. The guys spent a lot of time and energy maintaining their weight class regulations, as well as working on the moves needed to be expert grapplers. Positive thinking and the confidence of Coaches Nelson and Jones, added fire to the explosive energy created by Vaca mat men.

When asked how his team rated with him, Coach Nelson, with not so much as a moment's hesitation, had this to say. "They are a fine team. Excellent, excellent! They have done a great job this year." Vaca high is also proud of it's werstling team. They were undefeated in th Monticello Empire League this year. They hav been winning league victories since they bega playing M.E.L. league matches in 1977.

Motivation was a key part of Vaca wrestler success this year, as in past years. Knowing th support of their coaches and the spirit of thei school was behind them, the mat men hit the mats with victory in mind. Success usually fol lowed.

During practices, coaches and wrestlers formed a strong bond. One wrestler, who wished to remain anonymous, had this to say about his experience on the team, "I really have enjoyed being on the wrestling team. The team has a closeness that is very good to be a part of."

Whatever technique they used to motivate the wrestlers, it worked. Vaca mat men were champs again!

VARSITY BOYS
SHOOT FOR VICTORY

This was another electric year for the Varsity Boys Basketball team. As always, ambition, drive, skill, and intense power brought success and marked them "WINNERS!" Teams from other high schools were destined to worry about a game against the Bulldogs!

Ambition was their key driving force. Together they strived. Win or lose, they came out on top. Team members were an inspiration to each other. As in past years, the Varsity team has been excellent at team work. Because of the strong friendship alliances made between teammates, effort was strong and consistent.

The strong bonds formed as members of the Varsity Basketball team did not sever the competitive edge between team members. However, being a bulldog to these guys, means being the best- all the time. This is a rule they practiced, played, and lived by. The guys knew they needed to work constantly to produce that special electricity, they are known for on the court. Determination showed in every free throw and rebound. Vaca Bulldogs always wanted to win.

The Varsity Ball players maintained a maturity level befitting the fighting force they were. Many players had been capable of "The Varsity ball mentality" from their days in the Junior High system. Through tough practices, high pressure games and high expectations from coaches, parents, friends and the Vaca High School student body, the Varsity players kept their "cool" and made everyone quite proud!! Bulldogs will never let you down. As always, Varsity Bulldogs stay "Hot!" on the court.

JUNIOR VARSITY POWER PLAYS

Energy was a key part of the 1984-85 basketball season for both Junior Varsity girls and guys. As part of the transition from a junior high sports program to high school standards, girls and boys attempted to perfect their skills and play agressively. Devoting extra time to adjust between Jepson and Wood Junior highs, together they learned that team effort was essential to Bulldog victory.

Vaca High has Junior Varsity basketball teams they can certainly be proud of. Sheer determination helped some J.V. players realize their goals to play basketball with speed and skill that was without comparison. Without their contributions, team effort, and intense spirit, this season would not have been as major an accomplishment as it was.

The Junior Varsity teams met challenge after challenge. When the "heat was on," so were the Jay-vees!!

VARSITY GIRLS
BASKETBALL WITH STYLE

Vaca High's Varsity Girls squad burned up the court with their speed and skill during this past season. Once again they attempted to take the MEL title. This team was out to show every other girls basketball team that they were the best. Without a doubt the varsity girls have proved themselves time and time again, and they've turned "B-Ball"into "V-Ball!"

All year these girls worked hard to become outstanding players. Drawing much of their energy from Mrs. Wettstein's consistent support and inspiration, the team gave the season their all. Beth Gayvert gained a lot of rewarding experiences as a Varsity team member. She said in an interview, "Mrs. Wettstein is a good coach. She has helped me alot in improving my defense."

"V-ball" girls will all agree that their coach was demanding. Beth decided that "it was good, because it made our team work harder and play better." Kathy McDaniel, previous basketball player said, "the team and the girls are at their best because they're pushed to realize the best of their abilities."

When asked how she felt about her senior year on the Varsity Team Devina Sloan said, "Mrs. Wettstein is a great coach. Playing basketball was a pleasure and I am really going to miss it." Vaca High will miss Devina also.

The Varsity girls played to win. They are a tough act to follow. One way or another, these girls succeed.

ON THEIR WAY TO THE SUPERBOWL

It was November 20th, the night before Thanksgiving vacation. The POWDER PUFF junior and senior football teams were "revved" and ready for action despite the rain and muddy field. The excitement was electric, as they felt for once they were in the spotlight and had everyone watching them.

Rivalry between juniors and seniors played a major part in the outcome of the game. When interviewed Margie Obetz, stated "As seniors, we felt that we couldn't let juniors beat us or we'd never hear the end of it. Some people seemed to be out for blood, but since I knew most of them, I was just playing for fun."

Krissy Burke said, "Doing that made us want to beat them even though we are friends. During the game, we just didn't seem to care." She was referring to the song, "Like A Junior", patterned after Madonna's smash, "Like a Virgin."

The powder puff teams were surprised by the lack of people who showed up to watch them play in the rain. Had more people gotten involved, the game would have seemed more important. Margie Obetz reiterated the team's disappointment about V.H.S. student body support, "Last year, guys dressed as cheerleaders at half-time which added to the excitment of the game. We were kind of disappointed because they didn't this year."

Despite the rain, mud and lack of support the game went on and the seniors won- 14 to 0.

A SWING ABOVE THE REST

This year, the Vaca High Girls Tennis Team did it all. Winning the MEL title made all of their determination and long months of practice worthwhile. Thanks to Mrs. Cutler's support and helpful coaching, the girls were able to envision success, and make it a reality. Each tennis match they played intensified their thirst for victory. Giving each other encouragement and building team confidence, the tennis team became an efficient "machine."

There was power and energy behind every serve; every swing. Team spirit was high. These girls would accept nothing less than victory. In truth, they are the best and this year's season proved it. Vaca High is proud of the season high the tennis team achieved. This is the first title the girls team has taken in their eight year existence.

Ally Joye and Natalie Wiley agree that winning the MEL title was not their primary goal. Maintaining the strong friendships within the team was more important to them.

VARSITY BASEBALL SWINGS INTO ACTION

Defense was probably the strongest point of the 1985 Baseball Team. If it were not for the accuracy of the outfielders and the quickness of the infielders, the 1985 season would not have been such a success.

With the sunny weather arriving a few weeks early, the season got off to a great start. The fields remained dry, allowing much time for fielding practice.

Even though it was only Mr. Fernandez's second year coaching the team, he did a super job. When asked how one felt about the team and how well they work together Andy Grima had this to say, "The team gives forth all their effort all the time!"

Since the majority of the team were seniors, there was a great deal of respect among the team members. Each strived to do his best, each worked as a part of the group, combining all their individual capabilities, talents and qualities to make the 1985 season a success.

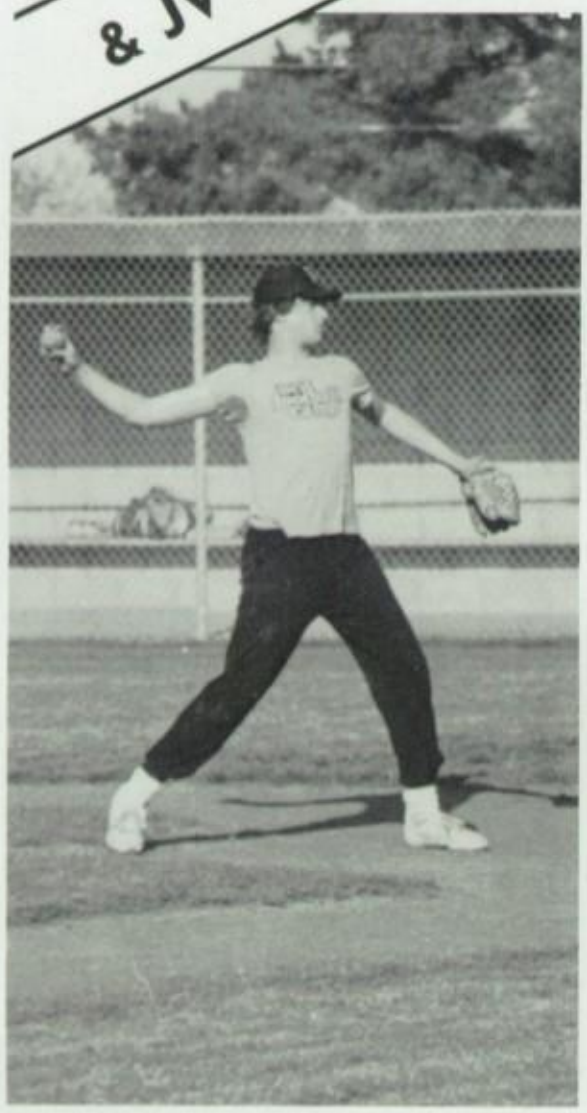
JV SOFTBALL & JV BASEBALL



HARD HITTING BULLPUPS

Junior Varsity teams are made up of sophomores and some freshmen. Being on any JV team is preparation for the Varsity team.

The defending JV Baseball MEL Champs kept their momentum and enthusiasm all throughout the year. Their toughest opponents were Vintage and Vallejo. The team looked good from the very beginning. Towards the end of the season they pulled together to show everyone what a real baseball team is made up of.

Like the JV baseball team, the JV softball team kept busy with vigorous practices and games. With Mrs. Mumaugh as their coach how could they go wrong? Their season started off rainy, but when the sun shone so did the team. Mrs. Mumaugh thought her team showed lots of promise at the beginning of the season and they soon proved her theory to be true.

Both JV squads had very successful seasons. The players are now ready to face what is in store for them next year on the Varsity Teams.

VARSITY SOFTBALL STEALS THE SEASON

When the Softball season started, the spring heatwave permitted practice in shorts and "T"s. That was when Ms. Wara "cracked the whip." She and her team had high ambitions. The other teams would be abandoned in "left field and would never reach the diamond."

Armed with determination, bats, softballs, and well broken-in gloves, the girls hit the practice field to prove how tough they were; to themsleves, coach Wara, and their competition. Confident in their abilities, and willing to make improvements wherever possible, they worked diligently. Coach Wara spent time with her team, encouraging them, and pushing them to do their best.

Lisa Molina, a team member, really appreciates Coach Wara. "Ms. Wara is a great coach. She's dedicated, hard-working, and works us really hard. But it has paid off." Carolyn McSweeny, a recent transfer from Sunnyvale to the great relief of Coach Wara and the team had this to say, "Ms. Wara is one of the most concerned coaches I have played under." How did Jody Wara feel about her team this year? Last year, the softball team hit their homeruns, ran their bases, and made their grandslams. This season they intended to do more than just "play ball," Wara wanted war!

Basic ambitions were echoed by team members' performances in practices and games. Carolyn McSweeny said, "We give it all we've got. We're bad, right Ms. Wara?" Ms. Wara was always there for her team in a blind. During a high pressure game, they only needed to glance her way and she gave them the "signal!"

SPLASHING INTO ACTION WITH VACA HIGH

It's kind of hard to imagine diving and swimming laps in the pouring down rain. As hard as it may seem, our dedicated divers and swimmers swam rain or shine.

This year was the first year Vaca High had ever had a diving coach. Barbara Hood decided that she would take on the responsibility of improving the diving team. "I hope to make the diving team a winning team," exclaimed Mrs. Hood.

Even though diving hasn't been all that popular at Vaca High, swimming has been a long lasting tradition. Last year the swimming team was undefeated.

Andrea Borchers has once again taken on the task of swimming coach. The pressure was really on her to lead the team to yet another championship.

After the teams have completed a victorious season the athletes can think back to the time when they spent those long, exhausting hours training in unpredictable weather.

VACA TRACK
KEEPING PACE

Hoping to run, jump, and throw their way to victory, the 1985 Vaca High Track Team set out to tackle a new season, a season full of both triumphs and disappointments.

Refusing to let colder than average weather delay them, the team began practicing early in the year. They worked to defend their high rank in last season's league.

Track is a team-oriented sport yet it's individual as well. Participants practice long and hard, striving to achieve their personal expectations. However, when it came time for meets, everyone pulled together to gain the most productive season possible.

The team members were under the direction of coaches Larson, Baker, Weist, and Turbovsky (Mr. T). At Vaca High there are actually three track teams: Varsity Boys, Varsity Girls, and J.V. Boys. Due to this fact, coaching is a difficult job. The coaches were faced with the task of unifying the team members, and they pulled it off beautifully. Everyone pulled together for the good of the team.

Though coaches try their hardest to better you, when you're both physically and mentally exhausted, you tend to see them as unfeeling slave drivers. Whether it was coach Larson making you run that extra mile, or Mr. T pushing you to do those last ten leg lifts, it was nearly impossible to see the reasoning behind their "cruel and unusual punishment." Later, after the sore muscles had a chance to rest, the coaches were forgiven-a little. Sometimes there was even gratitude for the effort they expended in molding and shaping the amateur sports-people into competent runners.

GOLF AND BADMINTON

Working with a group of girls was not an easy task, but Gail McNally took on the task. The 1985 badminton team relied on Coach McNally for support during the season. The girls put in many hours of hard work. Each victory was hard-earned. The team celebrated their victories and learned from their defeats. All in all the season was successful.

The Vacaville High School Golf Team has a proud history. Throughout the years the team has had great success. Coach Don Trollinger's standards were high for this year's team. With the etiquette and determination needed to play the game, the 85 team reached for the elusive victories and excelled in their play.

On campus, many extracurricular clubs were offered for interested students. Club activities helped make time in school more rewarding. For some of us, club activities meant something more to do after school than going home to "veg" out in front of MTV. Getting involved in club scenes gave us the opportunity to make new friends, and form new ideas and opinions about the world around us.

Many different organizations made it possible for those of us with diversified interests to get involved and feel a sense of belonging and security. the following were just a few of the clubs popular at Vaca High:

Block V, designed especially for Varsity letter holders, gave active sportsmen and women the chance to make lasting impressions.

The International Thespian Society, organized for honor students serious about their theatrical prospects, maintained comeraderie between sensitive artists. This club made it possible for these aspiring actors to perfect their skills.

CSF, a special club for outstanding academic achievers, was one of the largest clubs on campus. In order to qualify for membership, a certain grade point average must be maintained.

These are just a few of the clubs that made campus life interesting for Vaca High students. Club participation helped build a lot of memories and shape a lot of futures.

The Associated Student Body, made up of class officers and class representatives to form a dynamite student council, kept Vaca High in progress with excitement this year. Homecoming, Winter Festival and Spirit Week were only a few of the major activities they organized to add life to the monotonous routine of school day existence.

Did you take advantage of the great bake sales student council held? If you didn't buy a card, you weren't an official member of Vaca High's student body, and you couldn't get those special discounts local merchants offered for official student body members. The discounts on student body activities only went to those who had cards!

The effort A.S.B. made at making the 84-85 school year exciting for Vaca High students was greatly appreciated. They helped us make memories for the future.

January 15, 1985, Black Student Unity presented "A Tribute to Martin Luther King Jr." The program began with opening music played by the Jazz Band, directed by Mr. Luther. The music faded, the curtain opened, and we were spirited back to a monumental day in both Black and White history alike through a skit entitled "Rosa Parks."

Tonya Stroud, President of B.S.U. offered introductory remarks on the life and times of this great man. His lifelong dedication to the fight for freedom and justice for all races was expressed in music, "Love is a Song," sung by the choir.

Lance Holt and Tina Taylor narrated a slide show on the history of Dr. King's life. Danielle Knox and Tonya Stroud restated a part of the philosophy behind the equal rights movement of Martin Luther King Jr.'s life in a poem called "Love is in Need of Love Today."

The delightful aroma of French food that drifted out of the Little Theatre was not a typical scene for an average school day. It was the annual French Feast put on by the French students and members of the French Club. The feast included a delectable array of the finest French foods made by students. This extraordinary activity took place on December 20, 1984. In addition to the students, the feast was attended by members of the School Board. The advisor of the French Club was Mrs. Gary.

Other club activities included candy sales, carnation sales, and bake sales. The money earned by these various fundraisers was put toward an ultimate goal- a trip to San Francisco. In the city the students were able to visit places such as Pier 39, Gharidelli Square, and many other fine shops in that area.

Lights, Camera, Action! Imagine the spotlight trained on you, as you attempt to recall all of your lines while half the school is watching your every move. That could be a nerve-racking experience; however, it is one that Vaca High Drama Club members have to become accustomed to.

The Drama Club can be defined as an organization born for the sole reason of enabling aspiring actors and actresses to combine their individual talents to present skits and plays, etc. One such play was the memorable Thurber Carnival, done in a series of short vignettes.

The Drama Club is different from the Drama Class. Anyone interested may join the club without being enrolled in the class. Members of the Drama Club attended the Linea Festival at Sacramento State College. The Festival was an actors program where the students got tips on acting from professional actors.

The talent of the Drama club members was evident in their plays and skits. They helped to make the past year an interesting one.

Lions, tigers and bears, oh no! Lions, tigers and bears, oh no! Hiking up treacherous mountain terrain, or trudging through icy snow in below-zero temperatures. Sound exciting? Well, for adventure nothing could beat the Wilderness Club. 1985 was the first year for this new club.

With Mr. Bimson as the advisor, this club went on a variety of different excursions. For example, the club traveled to Tahoe a number of times for a day of cross-country skiing. All this skiing was necessary in order to prepare themselves for Snow Camping. Snow Camping was difficult because one had to build a shelter to sleep in, and learn how to keep a fire going, or to prepare food with limited supplies. These things one might take for granted in a warmer climate.

Besides skiing and camping, the club also went on various backpacking trips. The Wilderness Club funded their trips with bake sales and by working the night school coffee hour along with the Drama Club.

DRILL TEAM

The award-winning Drill Team certainly lived up to its name this year. This talented group of girls was led by Captain Candi Martinez and Co. Captain Mercedez Fuller. Under the supervision of Marina Plastino, the Drill Team executed brilliant performances at both football and basketball games, as well as parades and competitions.

Becoming a member of the Vaca High Drill Team was not an easy task. The girls were expected to keep their grade point average above a 2.0. They were also expected to stay in top physical condition in order to keep up with those vigorous after school practices, that make a perfect performance.

In the fall of '84 the drill-team traveled to Mexico for a week of fun filled days and nights. At the end of their stay, they marched in a parade.

The Drill-Team had another venture in 1985, a cruise to Mexico. The team helped finance their excursion by selling candy, megaphones, and homecoming ribbons.

The 1984-1985 Vaca High Drill-Team did their part in making this past year a truly exciting one.

Did you ever wonder why a group of girls stood in front of a crowd while doing the same movements and saying words simultaneously? The cheerleaders main job was to create school spirit, cheer the players on, and get the crowd involved. The cheerleaders could be seen performing at rallies, football and basketball games, or practicing after shcool.

What many students may not have realized is that cheerleading was not all fun and games. There was a lot of time and hard practice involved before going in front of crowd. The squad started practicing in May of 1984, and attended a four day camp in late June. At camp the instructors taught cheers in the morning that were to be perfected before the evaluation that evening. The evaluation ranged from no-ribbon on up to superior. Very few schools earned superiors at evaluation but Vaca High 1984-85 squad got superiors consecutively. As a whole the cheerleading squad not only earned superior ribbons but came home with an overall superior trophy and the spirit award which was voted on by the instructors.

POM PON AND MASCOT

The cheerleaders and drill team were easily recognized at the games this year. But who were the girls with the orange things in their hands? Or, who was the joker running around in the dog suit? The answer is simple-they were the Vaca High Pom-Pon Girls, and of course the spirited Mascots. The Pom-pon girls performed routines to music, usually during a game's half time. The 1984-1985 pom-pon squad was one of the best Vaca High had ever seen. As far as school spirit went, nobody had more than the mascots! With seemingly endless energy, the mascots cheered the players on and kept the crowd entertained. These two squads spent an enormous amount of time and effort into perfecting routines. During the summer they went to camp along with the cheerleaders. At camp, the Pom-Pon squad earned a superior trophy, along with many superior ribbons. Our mascots won the Superior Mascot's award and also the Unity award. The mascots and the Pom-Pon girls were an important part of the year's school spirit. The presence of these two very special squads make the year complete.

What is it about seniors? What makes them so special? Could it be the way they walk around like they own the school? Maybe it's the sense of confidence they project that comes from all those years of experience. Most likely, it's the attitude that after twelve years of school, one year of wildness is well deserved! Sometimes, when the realization that it's your last year of high school becomes too overwhelming, it's fun to look back at all the past events that put you where you are today.

For example, remember in first grade, the sense of pride you felt when you sported your brand new lunch box (not to mention the matching thermos!) into class. What about in second and third grades when you were picked to be lunch line monitor! How about fourth and fith when you started to discover that there really was an opposite sex! Then sixth, when you found your first true love. On to Junior High school. You thought you were really bad! No more sitting in one room all day, now you get to go to six different rooms. And let's not forget our very first locker, way out in the middle of nowhere. Ninth grade gave us a taste of what being a senior would be like. Finally, you rule the school only to start over again in the tenth grade. But High School, and the excitement of walking to Jack In The Box during lunch. Then with eleventh grade came the fun of driving twenty friends to McDonalds in the cool family car! What could be better? Then all of a sudden your a senior. Just when you thought you'd never make it. So many more responsibilities to consider. What will the future hold? Jobs, college, marriage??? who knows.

So next time you spot some seniors making fools of themselves, understand that they're simply enjoying good times and great friends, before they have to stop, go their seperate ways, and take life seriously for a while . . .

SPOTLIGHT

Besides being a senior, LAURA CHANCELLOR is a young, talented artist. Laura feels that everyone in her family is gifted either in an artistic or musical way. Laura started drawing at the age of two. She loved to sketch animals and people in pencil and sometimes in watercolor. When she was seven she won "Best of Show" and she recently won the Judges Award at Jualald. The drawing was the judge's favorite out of the whole show. Luara's art work was on display at a workshop for the Art League. Laura plans to sketch as a hobbie, but not as a career. She would like to check out different art programs at colleges in order to learn new techniques.

Laura would like to some day be an elementary school teacher.

CHRIS WILLIAMS has been involved in Student Council since he was a freshman. He held the office of Student Body President both his freshman year at Willis Jepson and his senior year at Vaca High. His junior year he was junior class president.

Chris was elected by the administration to attend Boy's State during the summer of 1984. He was awarded the Vacaville American Legion Award and the Soroptimist Youth Recognition Award.

Chris was an active club member. He was in the CSF and an officer in the Interact Club. He was a member of Block V and has played Varsity Basketball for two years.

Chris plans to attend college either at Berkeley, Davis, or Notre Dame. He hopes to further his education by attending Law schools, in hopes of someday becoming a Justice of the Supreme Court.

DANIELLE KNOX is a multi-talented student. Her senior year was filled with various obligations. In addition to maintaining a 3.33 G.P.A., Danielle was the Secretary of the senior class and Secretary of Black Student Unity Danielle is an accomplished athlete as well. She has been on the track team for a number of years. In tenth grade she was a northern California finalist. She would like to continue in track after high school. In her spare time Danielle enjoys going to movies, bike riding, and jogging. Danielle was also voted senior attendant for homecoming. Danielle says her parents have been very supportive of her sports as well as her school work. For her future plans, Danielle would like to attend U.S.C., U.C. Davis, or U.C.L.A.

Spending all your spare time at a racquetball court might not seem like a typical teenage pastime. For MIKE LOWE it's just second nature.

Mike has been playing racquetball for the past thirteen years. He was heavily influenced by his father and the Vacaville Racquetball Club. So far Mike has won ninety tournaments. He attended the Nationals in Michigan where he was awarded $1,500. Mike was also first in the sixteen and under nationals. Later Mike turned pro and he worked his way up to eightieth in the Pro's. He has played all the professionals except two; Mike Yellen and Marty Hoagan.

Mike's long range plans are to attend college at either Sacramento State or San Diego State.

Not many students realize the hard work, time, energy, and dedication that goes into being in band, Jazz Ensemble, or Wind Ensemble. JODIANN COX is one student who knows exactly what it takes to be a successful musician. Jodiann started playing musical instruments in the fifth grade. By the time she was twelve she was proficient at playing both the saxophone and the bassoon.

Jodi was in Wind Ensemble playing first bassoon and in Jazz Ensemble playing first alto saxophone.

1984 was her fourth year with the Sacramento Youth Symphony and her first year with the San Francisco Youth Orchestra. The routine was rigorous, practicing every day for hours. On Tuesdays and Saturdays were rehearsals.

Jodiann's main goal in life is to play in a professional symphony as a career.

GARRY ERCK did not have a typical summer last year. On June twenty-seventh he left for Brazil as a foreign exchange student. Garry's new found family, the Mendes da Silra, lived In Rio de Janeiro near the beach. When asked how people felt about Americans Garry replied that they like the people of our country, but they don't like Reagan.

Presidential elections were held a short time before he arrived. In Brazil the candidates are are elected by the congress. Garry learned Portugese from his new family and friends. In return he taught them some English. Garry occupied his days by shopping, sight seeing, and going to the beach. At night he usually went to Discos like the Copa Cabana. Garry had a great time in Rio. It was an experience never to be forgotten!

A few talented students, like ALLEY JOYE, were chosen for a week long summer camp dealing with government. Annually, the administration, counselors, and teachers vote to see who goes to Girls' State. This camp demonstrates and trains students in all aspects of government including the election process. All of the girls were split into sixteen cities, and they learned how officers are elected on the county, city, and state level.

Alley felt the best part of Girls' State was being best friends with the other thirty girls in her city. She said the food was terrible because it all tasted the same. "It was fun, but the worst part was leaving and having to say good-bye."

Alley plans to further her education by attending U.C. Davis and major in Foreign Language with emphasis on French and Russian.

Would you like to know someone who has never cut a class, feels it would be embarassing to get a B on a report card and has a curriculum of Calculus, Advanced Composition, Physics and German 4? Well, now you do! It's none other than MURPHY JOHNSON.

Murphy has many hobbies including, hacking on the computor, soccer, running cross-country in the fall and running track in the spring.

Murphy is one of the five valedictorians at our school. That in itself is a major accomplishment.

After high school, Murphy plans to attend the Naval or Air Force Academy to pursue his career. Murphy would like to become a pilot, and, if possible even an astronaut. Maybe, someday, a graduate from Vaca High will be flying around in space!

JILL ROHLFS is definitely the epitome of a high school student. She has maintained a straight "A" average since the ninth grade, thus making her a candidate for 1985 Valedictorian. Jill's schedule consisted of classes such as Calculus, Physics, and Advanced Composition. Jill has also had many extra-curricular activites. She has been a member of Varsity Pon Pom for two years and she was captain in her senior year. She was a member of CSF and Secretary of the French Club. With all these activities it might seem difficult to maintain a straight A average. However Jill is a very talented and brilliant student. After graduation she hopes to attend University of California at Berkely and to major in the field of Mathematics.

Waterslides? Trips to the mall? Swimming at the community pool? No way, not SCOTT MCKENZIE. He enjoyed his 1984 summer in Quito, Ecuador. Europe was his original choice but with no regrets, he was sent to Ecuador.

Different countries have different rituals. For instance, Ecuadorians always shake hands and give kisses on the cheeks also Scott had a housemaid wait on him, and it is normal for a father to have a girl-friend.

Lucky for Scott, the night life in Ecuador was far different from that of Vacaville. Instead of heading to Vaca Valley Cinema, Scott was out on the town of Ecuador going to bars and discos. Unlike America, there is no drinking age. Even "mom" and "dad" offered him drinks.

There's no doubt that Scott had a memorable summer. He made lots of new friends and when asked if he would ever go back he replied, "YEAH!"

Lettering in three sports, a grade point average of 3.5 and an S.A.T score of 1220 doesn't sound like your typical football player. ROB KRAMER is just one of the many talented athletes at Vaca High. He had lettered in football two years, playing defensive back; basketball two years, playing guard; and baseball three years playing out-was extremely difficult for a person who participated in three sports. He had Calculus, Physics and Advanced Composition. Rob spent most of his time after practices stydying.

With all these accomplishments Rob plans to attend Notre Dame or U.C.L.A. He would like to major in Business Administration or Economics,

A new group merged into Vaca High this past year: the Class of '87. One could describe them as a "collage" of the Eighties. From neon to preppy, GQ and Vogue, they came on the scene with a splash of color and a wide array of personalities. Where other sophomores in the past may have remained timid and little more than low key, the Class of '87 excelled in making their presence known. Instead of playing the role of the clumsy and unsure tenth graders, the Class of '87 displayed an air of pride that was recognized by their older peers. Sophomores participated in all the school functions. If any jokes were played on them by upperclassmen it was all in good fun. The sophomores were good sports about everything! They made a great addition to Vaca High.

The Class of '86 sprang to life this past year. So much for shy and self-conscious. From the playful antics in the halls to the pranks in the classroom, the Class of '86 set out to enjoy their junior year and maybe even learn something in the process. Juniors definately measured up to the expectations of their classmates. They showed pride and spirit in everything they did. From class competitions to school dances, and even football games, the juniors were there setting a good example for the sophomores, and observing the style of the seniors for future use.

The classes of '86 and '87 did ther part to break the monotony of another school year. Lots of luck to both the Class of '86 and the Class of '87!

▲ Lisa Molina and Linda Thurmond awaiting the arrival of the football team on Homecoming night.
▶ Elizabeth Carson starting a new trend; Hacky-Apple.
▶▶▲ Irene Reynolds strutting her stuff as the Pon-Poms perform to Footloose.
▶▶▲▲ A typical mod Vaca High student.

Playing the guitar might seem fairly simple, but playing in a live band is another story. PAT COURTNEY, a junior at Vaca High, is one of the best around. Pat has been playing the guitar since he was eight years old. Besides playing the guitar Pat also sings, plays drums, and plays a little piano.

"I can't wait 'til I get a chance to get up on stage. I just love to make people happy, not just half the people but everyone." Pat expressed, and went on, "Also I want big time musicians to think I'm good not just the fans."

After high school Pat will continue with his musical talent, while attending college. Then he hopes to become famous but if by chance he doesn't he'd like to work in a studio as a backup guitarist for different groups.

Can you imagine girls not being able to talk to guys unless they were formally introduced by mutual friends? Or maybe not being allowed to wear shorts in public? Well, KARA MOLONEY experienced these things, and more over the past summer when she spent three months abroad in Jordan.

However, things weren't all so strict. The family Kara stayed with was very laid back. During the day, time was spent at a great country club in the center of town, while the evenings were spent with the family.

When asked about her experience in Jordan, Kara replied "It was a great experience. I feel I have matured a great deal and have learned a great many things. I wouldn't trade my memories for the world!"

The sun is coming up over the hills and you know you have to get up for the long day ahead. You are finally up and your legs are killing you from the five mile hike it took to get to work the day before. That is how ROBIN THOMPSON spent her summer, working for the Youth Conservation Corperation. Robin got interested in the Y.C.C. when Mr. Gardner, her counselor, suggested that she fill out an application for the job.

Robin has wanted to be a forest ranger for sometime now, so the job sounded perfect to her. "It was a really good experience, I learned a lot," said Robin. Besides enjoying the work, she was also able to help nature by clearing trails so hikers can get through.

With a beginning like that, Robin won't have much trouble with a career in forestry.

To accomplish one's goals, one must work at them, such as MICHELLE TONNER has done. Michelle is a member of student council and now holds the position of junior class vice-president. Kicking up her heels is something else that Michelle has worked hard doing as a member of the drill team at Vaca High. Michelle said, "It's a very challenging and rewarding experience." Michelle is also an active member of the French Club, Service Club, Interact Club, and AFS.

Michelle participates in activities outside of school and she claims that some of her hobbies are collecting pencils, snow skiing, water skiing, and traveling to far away places. Her future plans are to attend either Stanford or Harvard University, where she plans to become a professor and later on, a dean of a major university.

The curtains open . . . lights, camera, action! JODI EVANS has experienced this many times throughout the seven years she's been involved in theater and choir.

Jodi has appeared in several major productions including, "Guys and Dolls." She also sang a solo in a pop concert in Vallejo. "I get a real good feeling when I know my audience is pleased with my performance." Jodi explained.

Jodi started acting because she found that she really enjoyed performing in front of an audience. "I think it's the good feeling that inspires me."

After high school Jodi would like to become a famous performer, but first she wants to attend Pepperdine University or a music college in San Francisco.

Many people have had dreams of being an actor, a singer, or even a doctor, but how many people dream of becoming a horse trainer? Well JEFF FERGUSON, a junior, had that exact dream, and he has turning it into reality.

At the present time Jeff owns two quarter horses, a Morgan, and an Arabian. The two quarter horses are used for barrel racing and roping in Gymkhana classes. Jeff uses his Morgan and Arabian mostly for parades such as Fiesta Days and the Dixon May Fair parade. He also uses them in horse shows all over the state. When Jeff isn't busy with his horses he enjoy's sking, swimming, tennis or just kicking back with his friends.

After high school Jeff would like to continue his education by attending Stanford and being a professional horse trainer.

Excitement is in the air, everyone is yelling and cheering for our awesome football team to kick off. Sound exciting? It is to sophomore AARON CANTRELL, a member of the Varsity football team.

Aaron has been playing football since ninth grade and would like to take it as far as possible. Someday he hopes to play college and or proffesinal football.

"I feel that being a member of the Varsity football team puts more of a challenge on me than J.V. could have, in the long run I'll become a better player" said Aaron.

Aaron had a very successful season in football but that's not all he does well, he is also a member of the Vacaville High's wrestling team. Although he plays both sports he's favorite is still football.

DARREN THOMPSON became interested in student government when he was in fifth grade. In the past five years, Darren has held the offices of advisor, president and vice-president. Darren enjoys being a part of the student council because it gives him a chance to make decisions and gain experience in talking in front of a large group of people. His main reason, however, is because he enjoys politics.

After high school Darren would like to attend a junior college and then later transfer to a University in Texas, Michigan, Florida, or California. His major goal however is to become President of the United States. As Darren put it, "I would like to unite the world, so it can become one, and try to improve the economic policies once and for all."

I believe that this year and the next two years, we will have one of the toughest teams in Northern California," stated sophomore DON YNUSTROZA, a 118 pound wrestler.

Don became interested in wrestling when he discovered that he wasn't good enough to go out for the basketball team. Don wanted to be involved in sports, but found that he was better at individual sports than team sports.

Cal Poly is the college Don would like to attend. He chose Cal Poly because he would like to major in Electrical Engineering while continuing to keep up with his wrestling.

When he isn't busy wrestling, or keeping up his grades, Don enjoys playing basketball or juist kicking bak and enjoying a good adventure book.

Football, wrestling and Coast Guard, do they mix? SCOTT BREWEN, a sophomore, seems to think so. Scott ahs been playing football for two years. In assition to playing football, Scott enjoys wrestling.

"Wrestling is an individuals sport. If you mess up or do something spectacular, you're the one who is praised or blamed," Scott explained. Sports aren't the only thing Scott has planned for his life. After high school he would like to attend the Coast Guard Academy where he will learn how to work around the ocean. After attending the Academy Scott hopes to get stationed at Bodega Bay and work on a Coast Guard cutter.

"It sounds really neat. I love the coast and the weather. It's pretty and I just feel great when I'm at the coast." With enthuesiasm like that, Scott will definately reach his goals!

There are many sophomores at Vaca High with different talents. One of the more recognized is ALAN U'REN. Alan enjoys playing the drums and has just recently formed a live band. At the present time the group consists of Alan, John Fiegner, and Pat Courtney. Alan hopes to someday play professionaly in a "new wave" band. "Playing the drums in a band is a good way to let off some extra energy," says Alan.

Besides being able to play the drums well, Alan also plays scoccer. The past seson he participated on the Junior Varsity soccer team.

Being in a band and playing soccer are not the only things Alan enjoys doing. In his spare time he puts his mind to work on yet another hobbie, and that's drawing. He has entered many contests and won several awards. His most recent winning was a contest at the Solano Mall.

t Vaca High, there are an abundance of specialty classes designed for the college bound student. Whether your interest is English, History, Science, or Math, there is a special course aimed at meeting your needs. These classes enable College prep. students to get 4.5 and 4.8 grade point averages, instead of just a 4.0; previously the highest average possible.

The graduating class of 1985 will encounter a far more difficult time competing for college entrance since these classes were only offered this past year. Berkeley has been known to turn down students with 4.0 grade point averages. Now students at Vaca High will have the education necessary for college level learning at "institutions" such as Davis and Berkeley. The graduating classes of '86 and '87 have the advantages of these advanced placement classes that will not only help students with 3.5 averages achieve even higher ones, but also those who have already attained 4.0 averages. These students will have precedence over those not subject to AP classes.

More students will be taking advantage of A.P. classes in the future, as it brings college a bit more within reach. Students registered in courses such as American Studies English History class are learning basic skills necessary for college and University level History and English courses. Two courses are combined to teach both subjects. For example, literature is assigned in English that corresponds with the time period covered in the History lectures. A student is expected to have mastered the English skills necessary to accurately show in essay form on History exams what they've learned.

The graduating classes of 1986 and 1987 are well on their way to the best colleges and Universities with the help of the new A.P. classes.

▲ Alright Jill Rohlfs, how do you do this problem?
▶▲ Rob Kramer happy that Calculus is over!

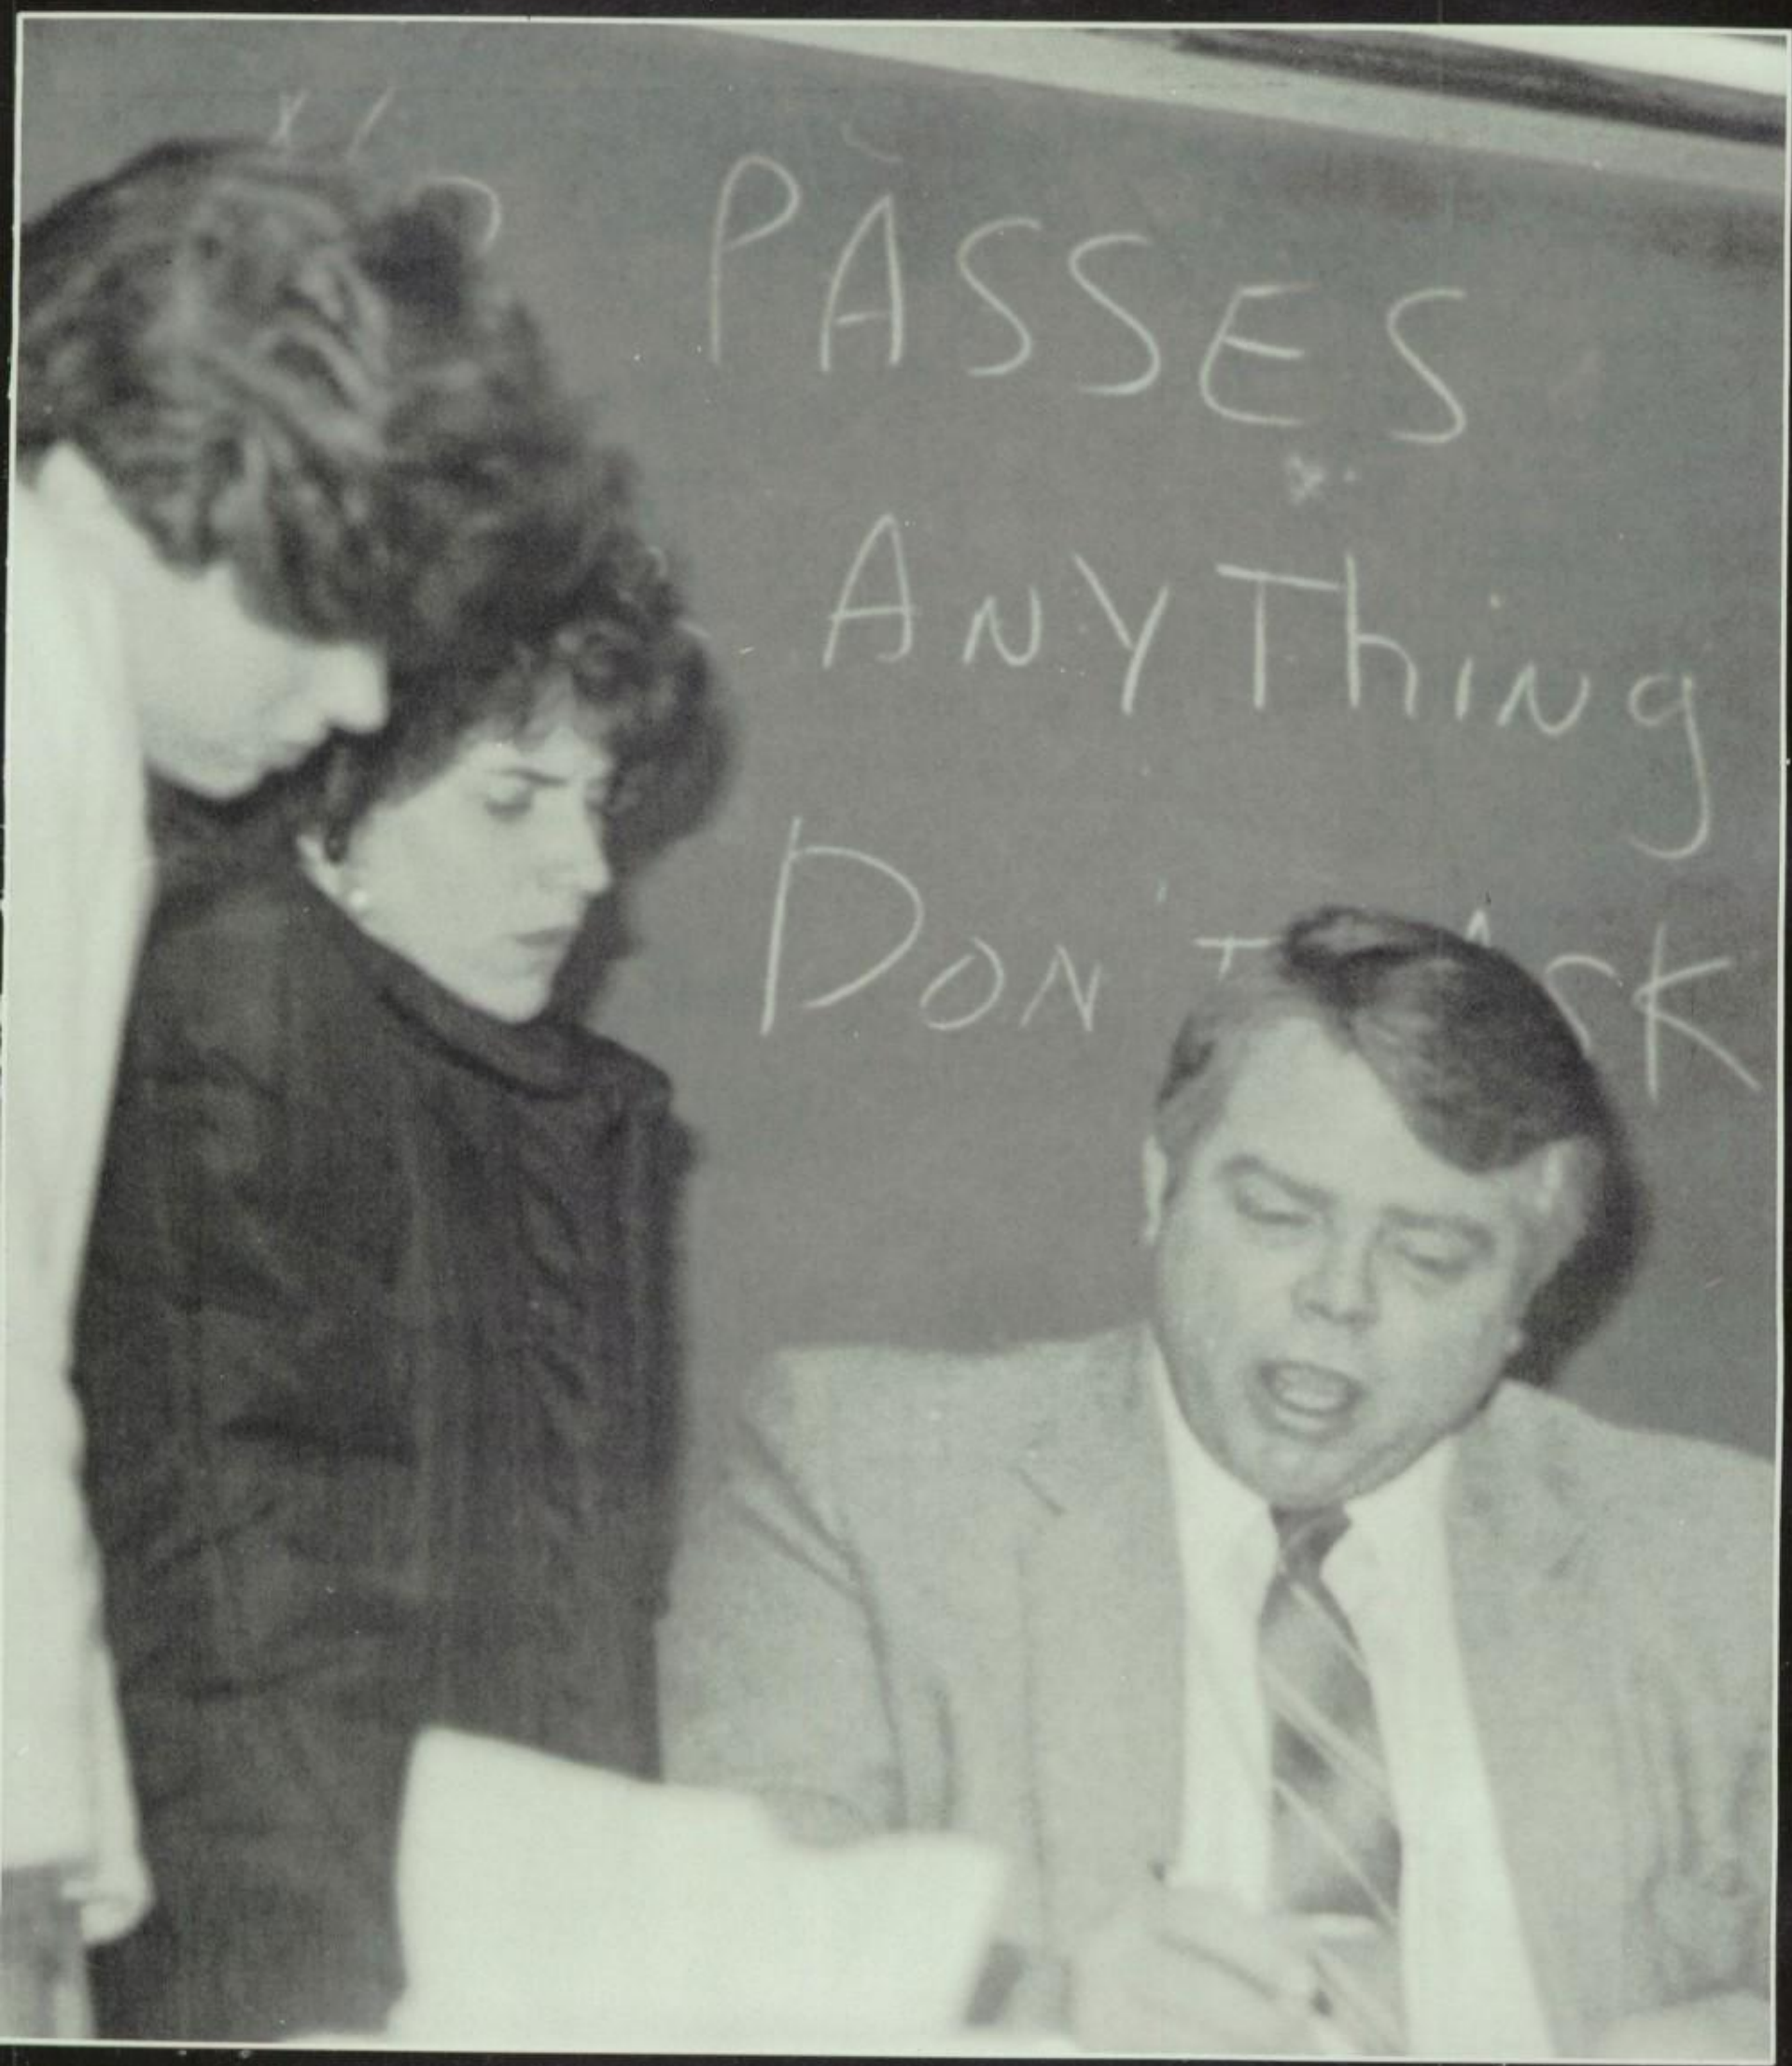
Have you ever driven by Kelly Malloy's house at 1:30 in the morning and observed the lights on and cars parked all around? Did you get elated thinking there was a party? As you got a little closer you stole up to the window, but what you saw was not your regular party. Instead you saw people around a table, Calculus books open, and contorted looks on every person's face. Then you remember, "Oh, it's just those crazy Calculus students studying for the big 'Mr. Mumaugh' Calculus test for the next day."

As John Evans put it, "If we put our minds together when we're studying, we seem to always conquer any problem put in front of us. But when it comes to taking the test, it's another story."

Calculus is a very difficult class, and we should give credit to those who have excelled so far in such a hard subject.

Many of the students feel Calculus is a great class to have before going to college. The work is hard the tests are difficult, but all in all they are glad they took the class. The students enjoyed most of all Mr. Mumaughs enthusiasm and ability to teach.

If the Calculus students don't remember anything after having left Vaca High, they are sure to remember their days in Calculus class.



▲ Jill Rohlfs and Beth Zimmerman trying to reason with Mr. Mumaugh.

Physics . . . . . a scary circumstance.

▶▲ Mr. Smith giving David Wanetick a little bit of extra encouragement.

Tex Trucker is driving his eighteen wheel long-hau truck on I-80 down the steep grade from Colfax to Pen ryn, at thirty-eight m/sec. He is carrying a modest load overall mass (truck & cargo) is $5x10^4$ Kg. Suddenly i front of him, Tex spots Arlene Airhead stalled in th middle of the freeway. With no time for braking, Te and his truck collide with Arlene in her stationary V.W (mass = $1x10^3$ Kg.). They stick together and continu down the road. (Ignore friction.)

a. What was the momentum of the system befor collision?

b. What was the momentum of the system after coll sion?

c. What was the velocity of tangled metal after second collision with another V.W. (mass = $1x10^3$ Kg.)

Sound difficult? Well not if your enrolled in Mr. Smith' physics class. This question and many others of suc complexity are the types of problems that you may en counter upon taking a physics exam.

Tests are not the only things that this class does. A great deal of their time is spent taking notes and listen ing to lectures. "Mr. Smith's a good teacher. He explain things in such a way that they become easier to unde stand." explained Karen Kincaid.

Physics is good preperation for college. There is a lo of reading and independent studying. Homework is as signed about twice a week, and they are tested abou once every two weeks.

In a scientific poll of his fifth and sixth period class was agreed that Mr. Smith was not only a serious bu also an amusing teacher. "His jokes aren't the funnies but they sure add a little excitement to the lectures, explained Gary Erck.

"Physics is a lot different then Chemistry," said Laur Kelly. "There aren't nearly as many labs."

So why take Physics one might ask? Well, as Ro Kramer put it, "It looks good on your transcripts fo college, and it's worth taking it just to listen to Mr Smith's Vector stories!"

▲▲ Try to pick the class clowns from this Physics class.

FAÎTES ATTENTION

▲▲ Mandy Wood, Sybil Jadin, Ally Joye, Michelle Amaral, the women of French IV.
▲ Sybil Jadin showing us her homework for the night, Ally Joye looking on with disgust.
▶▲ Why did the chicken cross the road, to get to the other side!

"Bonjour, Parlez-vous francais?" Does this phrase sound familiar? Well even if you haven't had a day of French, you still know what this means. "Hello. Do you speak French?"

Upon taking French you will learn many such phrases. But upon taking French IV you'll acquire the knowledge that allows you to hold an intelligent conversation with almost any person fluent in French. The class is instructed entirely in French by Mrs. Gary. In order to keep up with French IV there is a lot of independent studying required. To be enrolled in French IV you must have had a "C" or better in French III.

"French IV is a lot different from I, II and III. We do more than just vocabulary and day-to-day homework. In our class we read French novels, essays, and hold complete French conversations", explained Ally Joye.

As are most advanced foreign language classes, the class size is quite small. This year's French IV class was comprised entirely of girls. So guys, if you're looking for a girl trained in the advanced methods of the French culture. French IV is for you!

ACHTUNG!

▲ German IV Students being their ususal selves.
▲▲ German IV students listening to Mr. Korman tell about his days in Germany.

▶ ▲ Mr. Korman telling Kara Maloney what a good student she would make in Germany. Kara was one of the five A.F.S. club members who went overseas this summer.

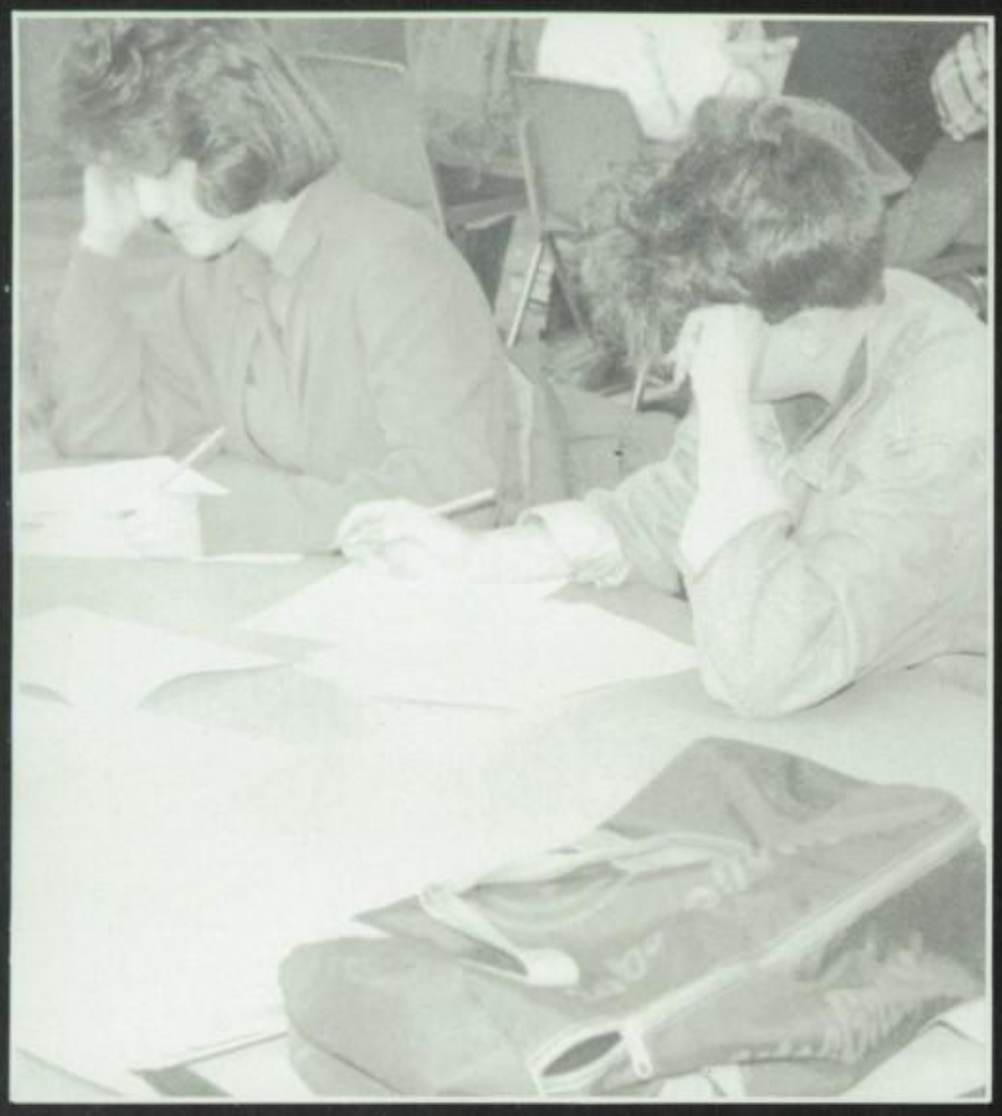
Have you ever encountered the feeling of being left out? If you have ever toured a foreign country or entered in on a conversation spoken in another language you might have some idea how it feels to enter Mr. Korman's 5th period class. Of course I'm referring to German 3-4.

Although this is a common language and recognized by all, not too many students at Vaca High take interest in it. Maybe it's because of it's difficulty. German is one of the hardest languages to learn and speak. The total class size is small but that doesn't stop the student's enthusiasm to learn! You might ask, "Why take German 3-4?" Well it's quite simple. Many students have German background in their family or have had some contact with the language. Some take German because of an interest in the country and plan to someday visit Germany.

Mainly the German class studies vocabulary and how to carry on a conversation. Mr. Korman has a great background in this language and makes learning fun! He takes time with each student, noticing each student's weakness and strength in the language. He adds stories of his days in Germany making the class even more exciting!

So, next year if you have an extra period, maybe you ought to think of German as an extra class. It's fun and you learn a lot. Most of all the teacher loves to teach!

"Lemme Tell Ya" - And Did She Ever



▲▲ Tina Casillas and Jill Bleschimt busily taking the final exam in Gate History. Gate History is one of the two "AP" classes juniors can take.
▲ Marisa DePianto whizing through her final exam.
▶▲ Ms. Wara looking on while she watches her history class work quietly.

History is a subject that most students tend to feel is boring, but Ms. Wara's unique style of teaching holds her students interest.

Ms. Wara teaches several history classes including: Government, Americain Studies, and Gate History. Gate History isn't like any other history class; it's more difficult and goes at a faster pace. In order to enroll in the Gate program, you need a certain percent on the California Aptitude Test (CAT), a high grade point average, a recommendation by your Twentieth Century teacher or if you were previously a Mentally Gifted Minor (MGM) student.

Gate History is one of the classes in which one can receive five grade points for an "A". This makes it possible for students to obtain a higher GPA in return for more advanced work.

In addition to regular assignments, the class has done many writing assignments including essays. The class does much more oral work than most History classes; for instance, debates on historical issues such as slavery and state rights. Ms. Wara feels that oral work is beneficial to the students and challanges their minds more than written assignments.

Gate history is interesting because of Ms. Wara's style of teaching. She discusses the material with the class and combines humor into her lectures to keep the students' attention and make the class more enjoyable. Ms. Wara is known for her spectacular drawings and her ability to relate with students.

Academically Elite

▲ Cindy Delorenzi, Karin Green, Karen Kassis and Jill Rohlfs studying for their final.
▶ ▲ Murphy Johnson and Gary Whitsett comparing answers.

Predicates, gerunds, participle phrases, punctuation, and tons of vocabulary. These are just a few of the topics Mr. Maunder's Advanced Composition English class study.

This class is a little different from the ordinary English class. First of all you need to take an entrance English exam just to get into the class. the exam separates the ordinary English students from the exceptional ones.

"Mr. Maunder is a good English teacher, and is really helping us get prepared for the college homework to come", said Chris Whittle. "He knows how to push the class to its limit and he gets our best work out of us", adds Karen Kassis.

This class reads higher level books such as, IVANHOE and JANE ERYE. The students write a lot more essays with no toleration for misspelled words. Everything is graded as if you were in a college English class. It puts more responsibility on the student. This class has many benefits such as the opportunity to earn six credits instead of the usual five credits awarded in other English classes.

Mr. Maunder hopes that he has prepared his English students for the difficult classes ahead in college. The students agree with his intentions and feel that they will be ready for college and the homework that follows.

Telling It Like It Is ▲▲ Working on a deadline, a typical scene for many BARK students.

▲ Tim Walton cutting up the final copy so the layout designer can fit it on the paper.
▶▲ Designing a layout is a very important part of putting together a newspaper.

Once a month many students await the arrival of the Bark. But not all of them know the dedication that is put into making the newspaper and the complications that the staff members may encounter.

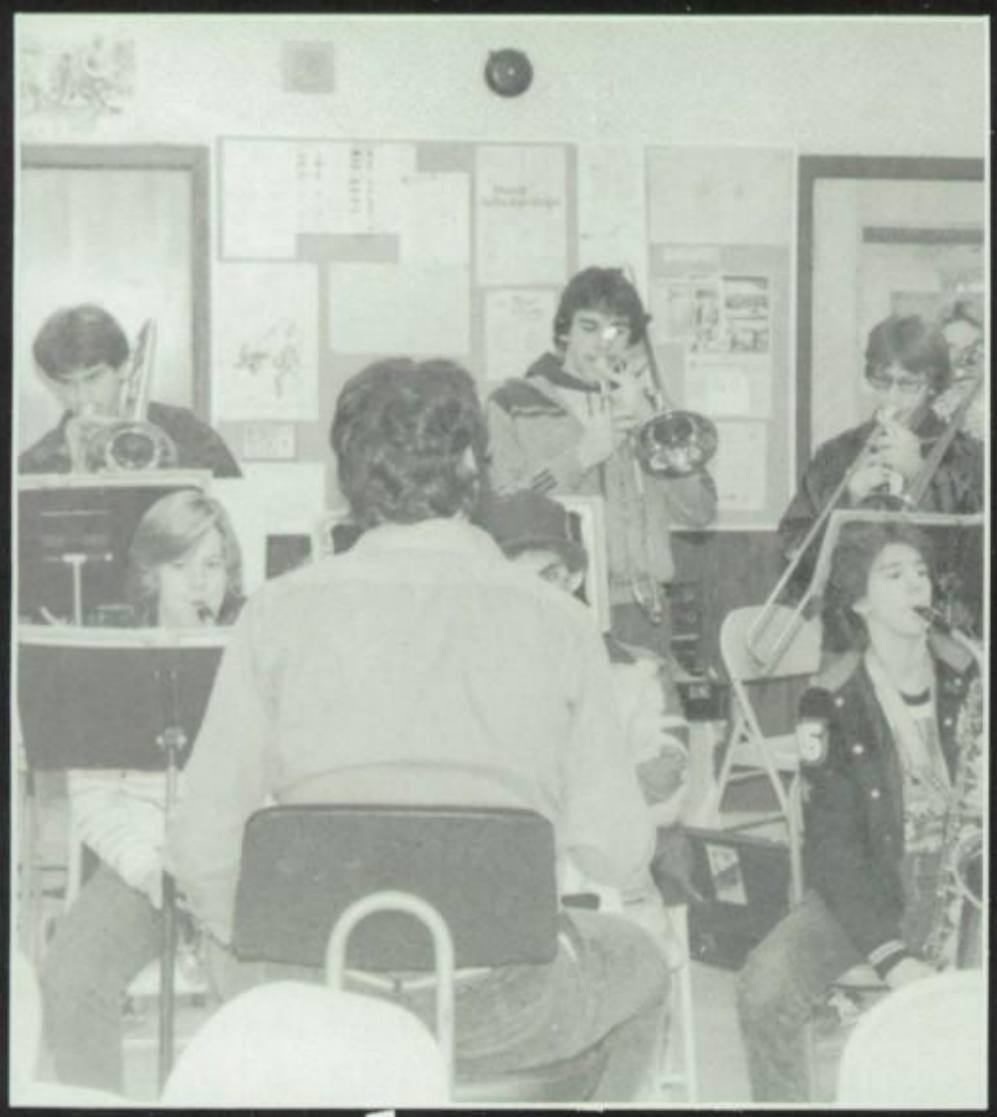
Some of the students on the Bark staff plan careers, in journalism, reporting or graphic arts. There are many different jobs involved in the Bark, it's not all reporting, and writing. There is ad managing, drawing the layouts, art work, and public relations. One of the main complications is trying to meet the deadline. "We meet the deadline, only it gets pretty crazy a few days before," said Barbara Baird, the Bark editor. The staff usually chooses one or two days to draw up the layouts. Sometimes they work up to five or six hours on that one day.

Mr. Ray decided to become the advisor of the Bark because he had some background in photography and advertising. "It's a change of pace," said Mr. Ray. "Some days are full of high energy and others are kick back. With the class being sixth period, it's a nice way to end the day."

The main interest of the students on the newspaper is writing. However, there are a few that signed up for drawing art, or just for the experience of being on a newspaper staff. "I like it, It's my favorite class", commented Barbara Baird. Ceanne Livingston said that she feels really comfortable with the other people in the class. Both Mr. Ray and Barbara Baird said that they believe that this year's staff was one of the best ever at Vaca High.

▲▲ Getting help from other students insures that the BARK is a well rounded paper.
▲ Mr. Ray, the advisor of the BARK, believes that teamwork is the most essential part of a newspaper.

They're Playing Our Song!



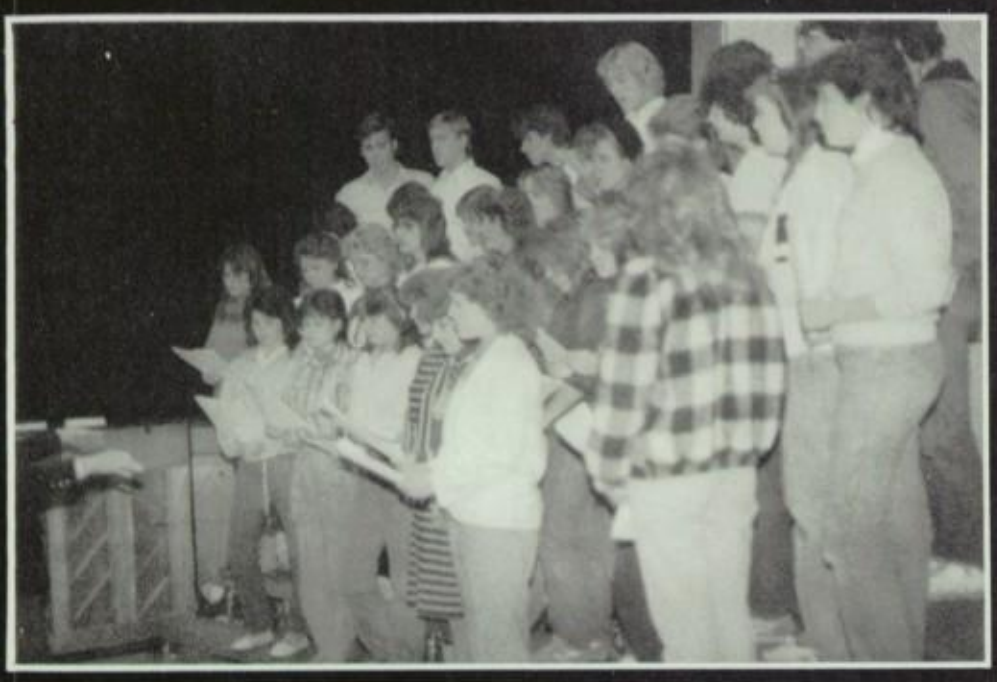
▲▲ Mr. Luther, listening to his jazz band while they make beautiful music together.
▲ Jodiann Cox blowing her horn in a way that nobody else can.
▶▲ Time spent on individual practice is one of the reasons jazz band is so good.

When the bell rings at 2:20, most of us are eager to get home and relax. But there is always an exception, that exception being Mr. Luther's Jazz Band class.

This class is held during the seventh period. All students who are enrolled in this class receive the usual five credits. Some of them even have "A" period classes. Jazz Band consists of approximately 20 students, both boys and girls. The instruments that are played range in variety, but when played together create a harmonizing beat. The Band is combined of saxes, trumpets, trombones, string bass, a drummer and a pianist.

This talented group of musicians is not restricted to just the classroom. Each year they take both an educational and adventureous trip. In March they went to a Band Festival where they were judged on their performance as a group and how they performed individually. The cost per person ranged from $50.00 to $60.00 each, that did not include spending money. The Jazz Band is a unique group of students, without their dedication who would be the musicians of our future?

All The Right Notes



▲▲ The Vaca High soprano section singing to the heights.
▲ At the Martin Luther King assembly, the choir sang "We Shall Overcome".
▶▲ The choir practicing their usual list of songs.

"Sing Your Whole Life Through." This is one of many songs the Vaca High choir sings, and it is a good description of the class.

Concert Choir is a unique class. Its curriculum is very different compared to other classes. In most classes you worry about your own achievement, whereas in choir each person depends each other. The class must work as a whole in order to get a clear sound that is right on key.

Many of the students take private lessons to better themselves. Several go to a solo festival each year to show off their own individual talent. The solo festival rates each singer from excellent to superior, and we should be proud that many of our Vaca High students take home superior ratings.

You may have heard the choir singing sometime during the year. Their singing telegrams really helped everyone get into a more festive mood for Christmas and they sang beautifully at the Martin Luther King assembly this year.

"Before I was a teacher, I just went to school," laughed MRS. GARY. "But yes, I did have a few jobs before I started teaching. I worked in the emergency clinic of a hospital from 4:00 p.m. to midnight registering accident victims, attempted suicides etc.. I also worked as a bookkeeper. "Quite a diversified range of jobs for a lady who didn't know she would become a teacher until she was attending college in Europe. "I was always quite shy in school. I didn't know then that I'd become a teacher."

In high school Mrs. Gary was on the county track team. Her time for the hurdles was the third best in the nation and she ranked eighth nationally in the ½ mile. There were no nationals for girls her age, but she had the hope fo aiming for the Olympics. However, during Mrs. Gary's first year of college, she spent the first semester out of school with mononucleosis. Mrs. Gary was born in Ada, Oklahoma, but spent her school years in the Bay Area. She attended Davis, and completed her graduate work in France.

In her "spare time," whenever a free moment is available, she enjoys training dogs, doing needlework, sewing, reading, running, and playing tennis.

SPOTLIGHT

Being a river raft guide is not a typical extra job for a teacher who teaches Chemistry and Physics. But for MR. SMITH it's just a way of life. Mr. Smith enjoys outdoor sports and in his spare time works on crafts. Mr. Smith was born in Ohio and grew up in California. He went to high school in Pinole and attend Cal. State Hayward where he earned a B.S. in Chemistry and a minor in English. To get through college, he worked as a glass blower, a job which in college he did to make money but now he does for pleasure.

Five years ago Mr. Smith began his job as a guide for "White Water Voyages". He enjoys rafting and recently began kayaking. During these five years he has had his share of overturned rafts and small accidents like getting caught on a tree, but has had no major accidents. Among Mr. Smith's other interests are downhill skiing, traveling and painting models.

Mr. Smith became a teacher because he found that he could explain things well and liked to teach. Teaching seems to be a good job for him, because he works well with sutdents. Besides he gets summers off. Although teaching does not pay as well as many other jobs, he has two other jobs which make up for this minor "inconvenince!"

From a taxi-cab driver to a pitcher for a pro baseball team our own MR. REECE DICK has seen it all. Mr. Dick started out as an art major at San Jose State; oil painting and classical music still offer enjoyment to him. Driving a cab helped to pay his way through college.

From 1955 to 1965 Mr. Dick pitched for the California State League. "I was a little thinner then," he stated. He also played for a team in Reno where he met the likes of Chico and Harpo Marx, Tony Curtis, and many more. "Harpo can speak as well as the next guy," commented Mr. Dick.

1957 was Mr. Dick's first year of teaching."I started teaching in Vacaville and I've been here ever since. I've seen this town grow from a population of 9,000 to 48,000." Mr. Dick has been teaching for 27 years, and several students have informed him that he has also taught their mother or father. "I think it will be time to retire when a student tells me I taught one of their grandparents."

Coaching was also another interest of Mr. Dick; he coached baseball up until the year 1977. Now he spends most of his time with students, teaching such courses as pyschology, and U.S. History. He tries to make learning fun, not all "nose to the grindstone" but not all "swinging from the chandeliers." Mr. Dick strives for a happy medium. Most students would probably agree that he's done a darn good job.

Many people take for granted the freedom we enjoy in the United States. But, unfortunately, not all countries have had such luck. It's hard to believe that only ninety miles away from Florida is a small, communist country which has a population of ten million people. The country is Cuba, and it also happens to be MR. DELCALVO'S homeland.

Twenty-one years ago Mr. delCalvo's family decided to flee from Cuba and come to live in the United States where you can speak your mind and have the freedom to do things people can't do in Cuba. In Cuba it's difficult to worship God, you are expected to worship the government. Cuba, even with all her problems, has a low crime rate and few problems with drugs.

"I feel privileged to be a foreigner and able to teach American Goverment," Mr. delCalvo stated "I feel really honored to be a part of the best country in the world." Mr. delCalvo also feels extremely grateful to the American goverment for granting him a visa to live in the U.S.A.

Mr. delCalvo thinks that Cubans will never make very good communists because they enjoy life and want to make the best of it. That is certainly true of Mr. delCalvo. He loves life and he loves teaching and most of all he loves relating to his students. He even loves singing Cuban songs while keeping rhythm by pounding his hands on the closet.

So, if you ever have the chance to take a class with Mr. DelCalvo make sure you don't miss out on the opportunity. He's fun and exciting!

Traffic director, hall monitor, friend; MR. REYNOLDS has been with Vaca High for the past thirteen years. Before coming to Vaca High he worked for the Federal Government in the Civil Service, and served in the Air Force for twenty years. During this time he lived in Europe, Asia, and six different Air Force bases throughout the United States.

Born and raised in North Carolina, Mr. Reynolds met his wife at a church picnic in 1942. They were later married and had six children, four of whom graduated from Vaca High. Mr. Reynolds is a scratch golfer. On weekends he can often be found tearing up the greens pursuing trophies and prize money.

1985 is a great year and Mr. Reynolds tends to agree. He has decided to graduate with the Class of '85. He says he'll miss the students and faculty very much. If he stays social security will cut back his paycheck, which he doesn't want to happen.

Mr. Reynolds has that special knack of enforcing the rules without insulting the students. He gets along with everybody and knows the names of thousands of students. Many times Mr. Reynolds was there to help distraught students get through hard times.

According to Mr. Reynolds, our school has improved with age. Obviously because we have had him to help us through.

SPOTLIGHT

Students know MR. CARRINGTON as the teacher whose classes decorate the Little Theatre each year at Christmas. But there is much about him that is not as well known.

Mr. Carrington was born and raised in Dunsmuir, California. He went to U.C. Berkeley and earned his B.S. degree in forestry. After college he spent two years in the Air Force, then became assistant sales manager for a lumber company. Two years later he returned to college to become a teacher.

In addition to being a teacher, Mr. Carrington has several other abilities. He is a well known self-taught sculptor. Several of his sculptures have appeared in galleries. He also owns his own news service, which covers news in Northern California for several stations.

Flying is one of Mr. Carrington's major interests. He owns an antique airplane, which has been partially rebuilt. One of his most interesting experiences with his airplane occured while flying over mountainous terrain.

He began to have engine trouble and was forced to land on Interstate 5. His other interests include skiing, hiking, swimming, traveling and bugging students.

The aspect of teaching which Mr. Carrington enjoys the most is "kids." Through his projects and creative teaching style, Mr. Carrington trys to make his students think and be more creative.

Have you seen a bearded man racing around campus in an MG with a hat perched rakishly over one eye? He's the soccer coach and German teacher. This man, MR. CHUCK KORMAN, revealed startling information during an interveiw.

Mr. Korman was born in Hoboken, New Jersey. "The very first ghetto, I'd call it the armpit of the world," said Mr. Korman, "but that's a compliment."

Mr. Korman could have qualified for Country High School. He made C's and D's throughout his high school years but went on to graduate from Berkeley (go Bears) with a B.A. in German, Masters in German and a B.A. in Political Science. However Mr. Korman did not attend college until his late twenties. He was an acitve participant in the anti-war movement at Berkeley. Mr. Korman said, "I never got arrested because I ran too fast, but I'm glad I was part of that movement. Now, the people who opposed that war are looked upon differently than they were then. Now they're recognized as being right whereas before they were condemned."

Before Berkeley, Mr. Korman was in the Army. He spent two years as a spy on classified missions in West Germany. Twice, he almost got stuck in East Germany, but he managed to get himself back into the west safely. After the army Mr. Korman went into a seminary for three years to become a priest. But when asked why he left Mr. Korman just replied, "No comment."

Mr. Korman has been teaching at Vaca High since 1972, and loves it. He believes that you can get the best or least education here. It all depends on you.

How many teachers do you know who can say they went water skiing behind a sailboat? Yes, a sailboat! Well, now you do! The teacher is MRS. MCCARL. She said the wind was just right, "So why not try to waterski?"

Besides waterskiing, Mrs. McCarl enjoys many other hobbies. She enjoys karate, sailing, running, and is an expert at writing complaint letters. She believes very much in fitness, and helps train her husband, who is a weight lifter. Her husband has won many titles for his "natural" muscles such as "Mr. Goldon Bear", and "Western U.S.A. Natural". Mrs. McCarl said she doesn't really mind all the women callers, but they get a little nervous when the men call!

Before she started her teaching career, she used to spend her summers with her husband in their Tahoe cabin. Although she enjoyed its sun and water, she also worked as a hostess in the Harvey Casino. That's where she got the chance to meet some of the most interesting people in the world.

For those of you who know Mrs. McCarl, you can all agree about her being a fun teacher. She teaches Consumers Education and Home Economics, which was her major at C.S.U.S. She is also the Jr. Class advisor.

When a nation goes to war it can be a terrifying experience for every man, woman, and child. Many men are drafted and sent away from their families to fight for their country's freedom and beliefs. Thats exactly what Vaca High teacher MR. MCFADDEN had to do during World War II.

Mr. McFadden has taught both U.S. History and American Government for eighteen years, and was able to teach his students about World War II from experience.

During World War II, Mr. McFadden flew an American bomber plane over enemy lands. One day in Hungry, after parachuting from his plane, he was seized by German soldiers, the taken to a German prison camp. Mr. McFadden was lucky enough to only spend three months there, and he wasn't treated as cruely as some of the other prisoners.

After retiring from the Air Force, Mr. McFadden decided to become a teacher. Mr. McFadden retired this year after eighteen years of teaching in order to enjoy his family.

IS IT RIGHT? NO!

The year is 1997. A blue pass arrives at the class, the students look around. The student whose name is on the pass gets up and heads out the door with a face that is nervous and almost ready to cry. The walk down the hall seems endless. As the student arrives at the office, he shows the pass to the secretary. With glaring eyes she ushers the student into the Dean's office. Two blue dressed men with guns at their side ask the student to sit down. The Dean then walks in and asks the student to empty his pockets. Several miscellaneous items appear: gum wrappers, matches, paper, and a vial. The Dean then walks over to the windows, closes the curtains, and tells the student to strip. The student knows now what is in store for him. But would they ever believe that the vial wasn't his? That his friend had just asked him to hold it? How would you feel if these incidents happened at Vaca High? Is it right?

Many students asked themselves these questions when the Search and Seizure law was put into effect in late January, 1985. The law states that a student and his locker may be searched at any time. The law went into effect because of incidents that happened at a school back East. A teacher walked into the bathroom where a girl was smoking. The girl quickly put the cigarette out. The teacher asked the girl if she had been smoking. The girl said no. The teacher didn't believe her and took her down to the office. The Vice-Principal made the girl empty her pockets. In her pockets were cigarettes and the girl got in trouble. But she said that she was dealt with unfairly and took the matter to court. After first receiving a favorable decision, the girl lost her case on appeal. As a result of this incident, and others like it, the Search and Seizure law was put into effect.

In the beginning the students at Vaca High were quite upset with the new law. But after the initial shock had left they let it pass. The law itself is not unreasonable, if dealt with properly, and doesn't get out of hand with strip searches. If that happens the law may prove to be more trouble than it's worth.

OLIVER ON STAGE

An extraordinary production of Oliver was presented at Vaca High featuring members of the Vaca High student body and some special elementary thespians.

Patrick Wibbeler, a young and very gifted "Oliver", gave a remarkable performance for a boy of his years. His portrayal of the young orphan brought all the tragedy of Oliver's life into focus. From his lonely days in an orphanage run by a cruel master called Bumble, played by Eron Ford, to his new position as a "pick-pocket" among the harem of boys collected by the wicked, miserly Fagin, played by Brett Gray, Oliver makes friends and manages to maintain a positive outlook on his life.

The scenes for the play were extremely realistic and very important elements in the play. Mr. Davis felt it was important to have the proper props and backdrops to enable his cast to identify more readily with their characters.

The student actors did a great job of bringing their characters to life and making the audience believe in their authenticity. Vaca High's Spring production of Oliver was a smash. All the hard work and extra effort during those long, after school rehearsals definitely paid off!!

◀ ◀ ▲ Greedy Fabin, played by Brett Gray, manically grins over his treasure.

I've been reading through a couple of the old Edito Notes, trying to figure out what I'm supposed to say. I' noticed that all of the previous Ulatis editors thank their sta family, friends, and other important people. I would like start this off by thanking my family. Even though we we through some pretty rough times (i.e. my sisters great p tures) I could always count on them to help me in my time need. Thanks guys, your the best!

Next, I think, it's the yearbook staff. The staff was the be Anybody who can handle my wishy-washy attitude deserv an award. First I'd like to thank Michelle Cardoza, my rig arm. Michelle deserves most of the credit for the design this book. Thanks Michelle! Next Marcia Brandeberry, wh seemed to keep the peace between Mr. Swenerton and m self. Between Marcia and Gussie Gorehan, the Academics Editor, this yearbook would nev have come out. Thanks to you both for the endless hours in the "computer room." You gu know how much you meant to the book. Also Kym Collins, the other Academics Editor, made m job a lot easier. She finished the dreaded faculty deadline.

One of the biggest jobs producing the yearbook is obtaining good photographs. I would like thank Natalie Wiley, Photo Editor, for doing an excellent job. Sorry for everything. Next, t photography staff. Allyson Joye; dependable Ally, without her we still would have been taki pictures at the end of the year. Albert Vasquez; Al your the best. Thanks for always sticking me. You could never know what your friendship meant to me! Chet Cheechov, our outstandi skier. We all know that you were a major asset to the book. So you skied alot on Friday deadline Heck, you only live once. Brent Hatcher and Eron Ford; these two guys, especially Brent, broug me down to earth when I thought the book would never come out! Thanks guys. Next, the Spo Editor, Kristy Duncan. All I can say Kristy is that you really did do a damn good job. Sorry I'm telli you this now. You have a real talent. Keep it up. Sorry for everything. Now for Dave Edmonso the Underclass Editor. Well Dave, thanks a million for everything, even though you asked million question. I'm only playing. Keep up the good work!

Now for the rest of the staff: Ceanne Livingston, Michelle Day, Sonya McDaniel, Tonya Woo jennie Lunden, Scott Robinson, and Mary Ann Simmons. I didn't deal with you guys alot, but y were the backbone to the book. You made it what it is. Thank you will never be enough. Last, b not least Mark Santanicola. I'm really not sure what Mark's title was: class clown, class fli naybe I could call him our color printer, but he only did a little (Ha! Ha!) If it were not for Mark's okes I would have gone insane and my friends would be visiting me in Napa Hospital. Thanks weety, Your the only one!

Oh, I guess I forgot some one: Earl Baby, our renowned Advisor. Well, I guess you thought the ook would never be out. You can always look on the bright side of things- you'll never have a ear like this again! Thank you for everything. None of this would be possible if it were not for ou.

There are a few a people that I would like to thank for their help. Mrs. Ownby for the use of the omputer room, the custodians for putting up with me at night, Mrs. Santopadre, and my avorite Administrators McDoug and McDan. I know you'll miss me after I am gone.

Well, I had some very big ideas this past year, and with the help of my staff, friends, and family I ccomplished these plans. I hope you all enjoy the 1985 edition of ULATIS.

I would like to wish the classes of '86 and '87 lots of luck, and to tell the class of '85 that they re the best! No class that comes through the halls of Vaca High will be better!

There is one more person that deserves thanks- the yearbook company representative, Jim illespie. Well Jimbo, we did it! Your help was irreplaceable. Keep up the brillant phone messages.

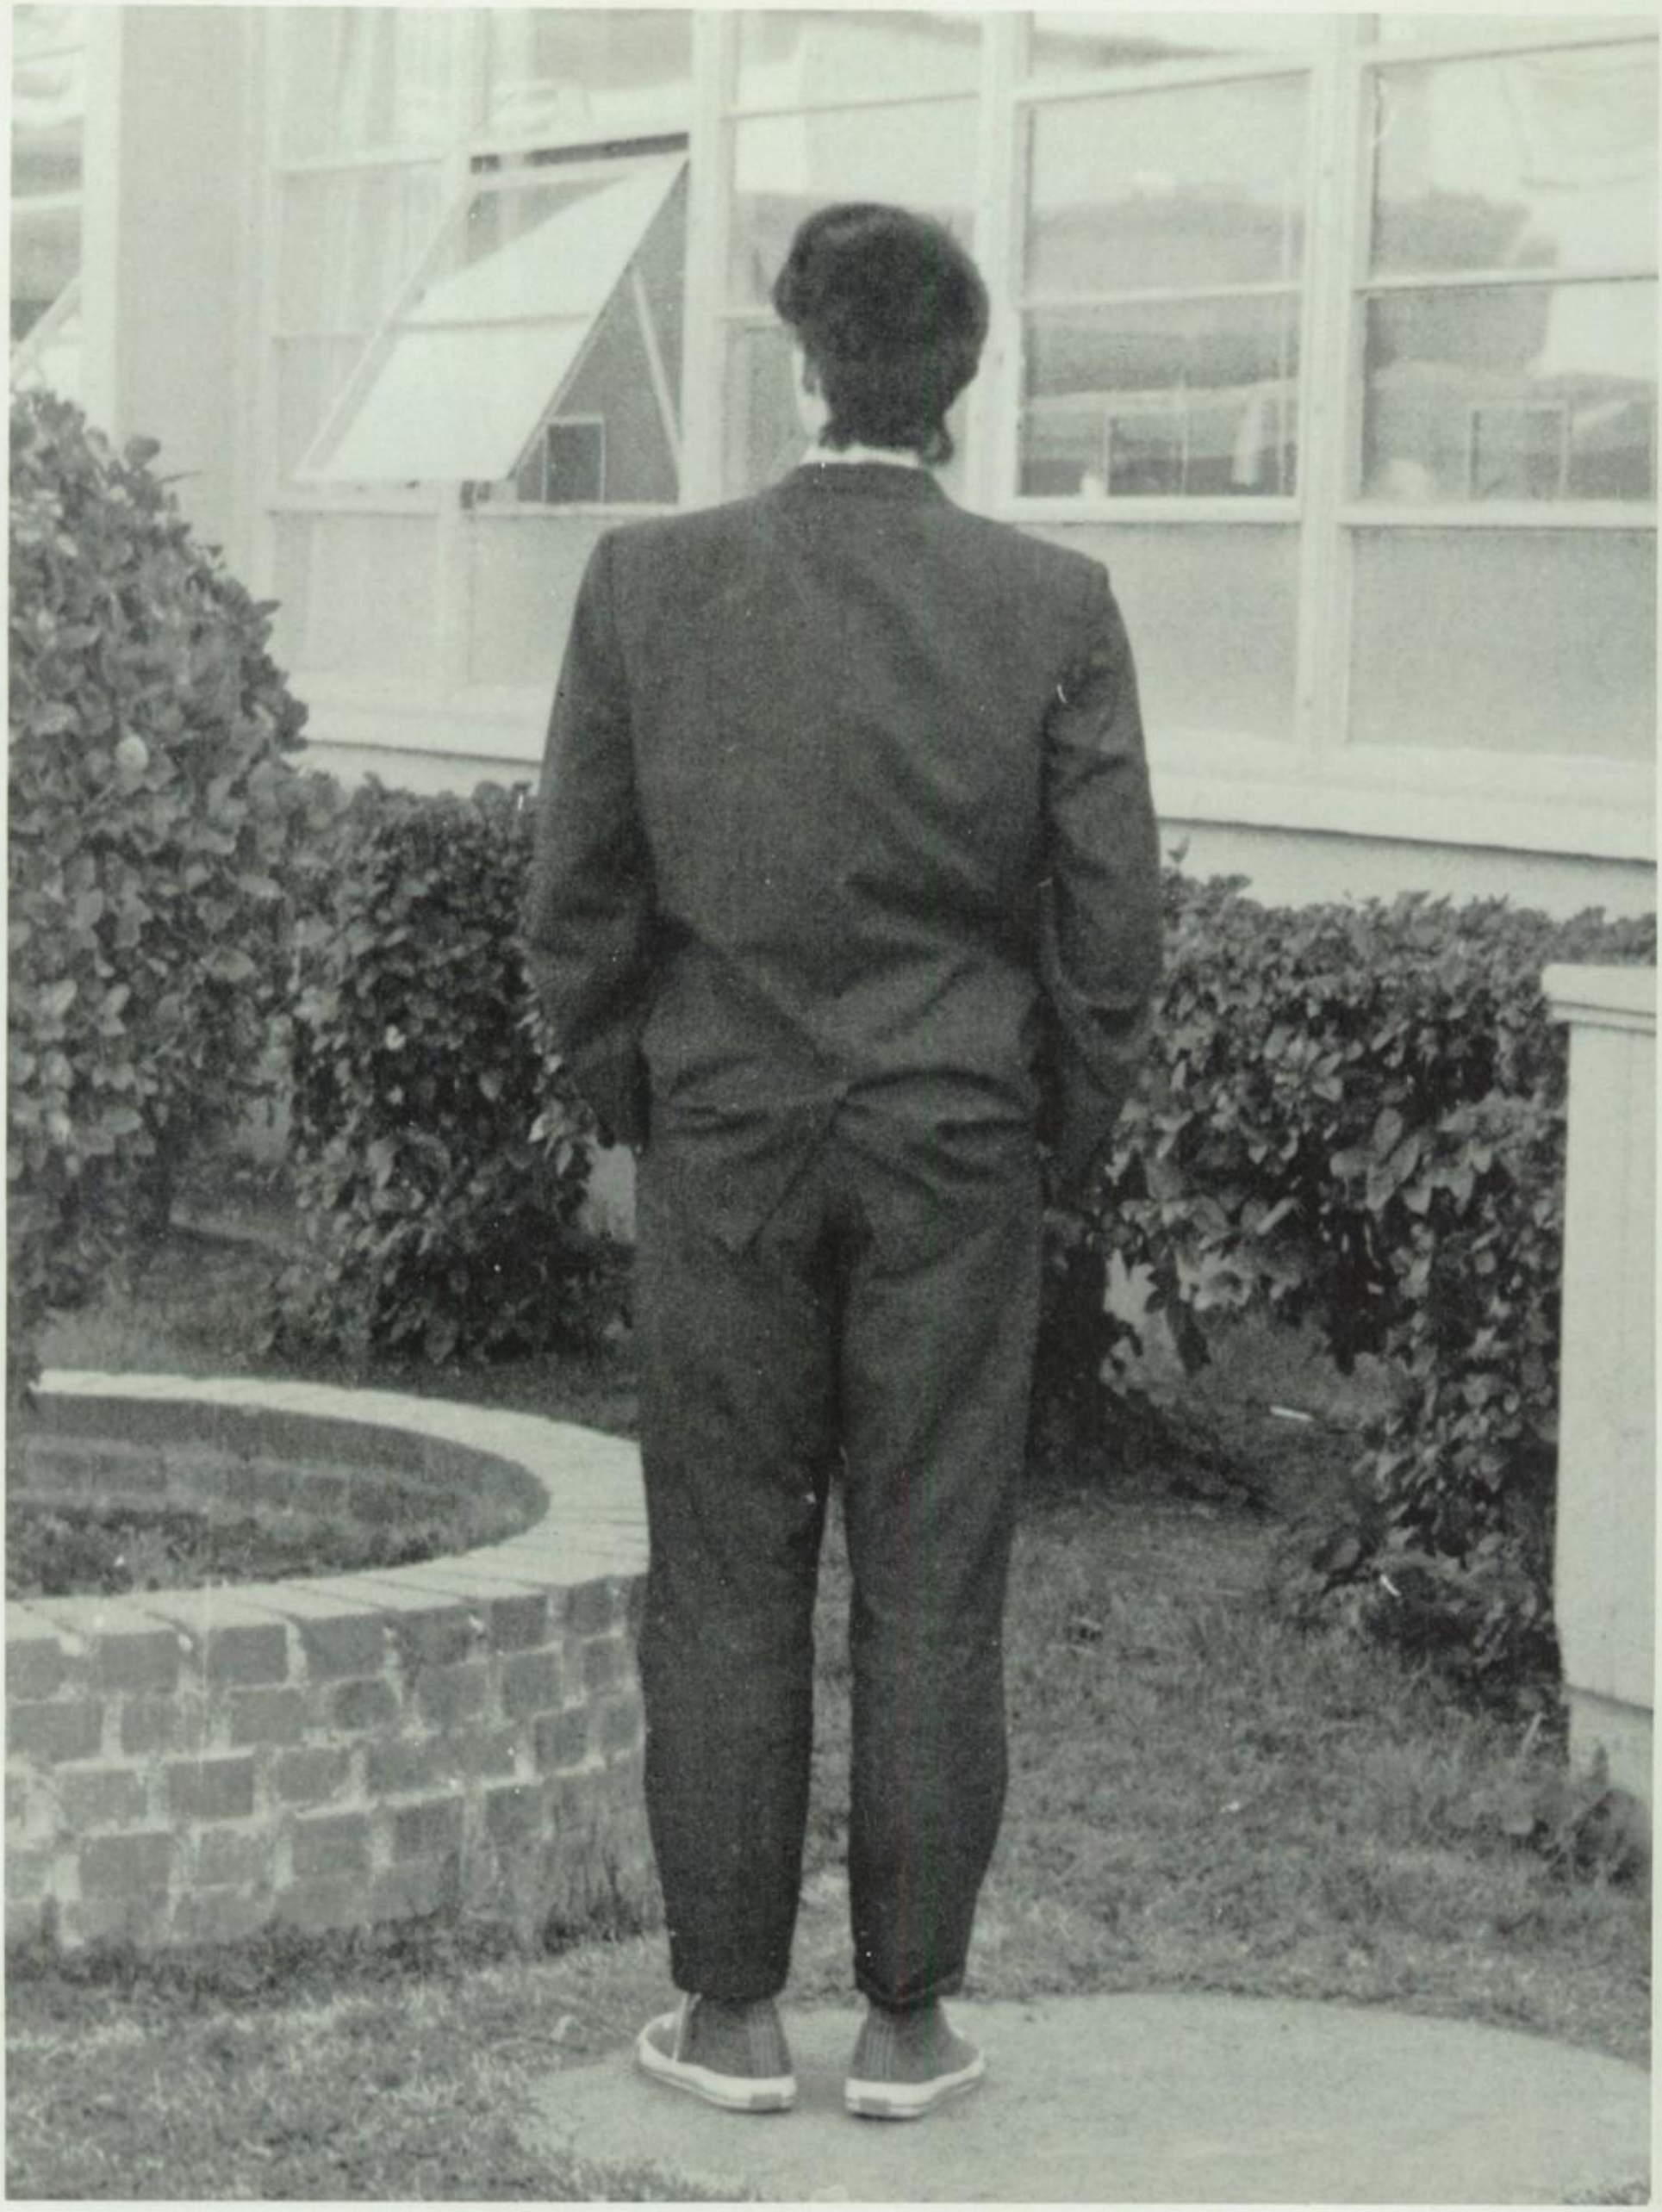
GRENOUILLES



In the beginning, the school year seemed simple enough. Books, homework, friends, sports, weekends- all the usual trappings of the school year. This year, however, was not usual. It was a time for change.

With the hopes that 1984-1985 would be a progressive year for education the school day was extended by ten minutes and the year was increased by one week. This was just the first stage of a plan to greatly increase the amount of time students spend at school. Just when you thought it was safe to take a short break from school, another surprise was waiting . . . . . the truant officer! This tactic was used to discourage students from cutting class. Did it work? A new law was adopted by Vaca High, Search and Seizure. Any one of the administration had the right to inspect a students locker, car, or personal belongings. Despite these new rules and regulations, the year seemed to go by smoothly. The different sports seasons came and went, with a variety of wins and losses. Summer seemed to slip right into winter and cold weather stayed for what seemed to be forever.

The presidential election was almost boring. Reagan's landslide over Mondale was announced by the media before the polls even closed. Another big political issue was the peace talks with Russia. Only the future will tell if anything was accomplished. The Superbowl was, as usual, a highly publicized event. Maybe too publicized? The 49'ers victory over the Dolphins was overwhelming. And speaking of Victory, The Jacksons VICTORY tour was a huge success. People traveled for miles and stood in lines for hours to see the history making concert. Blockbuster movies were everywhere to be seen. Ghostbusters, Flamingo Kid, Dune, Purple Rain, and Beverly Hills Cop, were just a few movies that grossed millions at the box-office.

To sum up the events of the past year would be impossible. But the memories will stay in our hearts and our minds never to be forgotten.

Kristine,
Have a great summer!
Keep in touch

Hey Kristine!
Welp, it's been pretty cool having you around. Thanx for helping me thru this last with Shelley. I'm gonna miss all you guys! (and the whole state!) Just remember: God Bob is bad!!!
see ya!
love,
Ted Wilder

Kristine, Wha-sup? I'm sooo glad I met you this year. You are sooo sweet and nice stay that way. OK? If you do you'll go far in life. Hope you have a great summer. Stay out of trouble and try I do say try to not party too much. Even though I'm glad we had PE together. I hope we will see each other next year and I hope we will have some classes together. I hope you will always get what you want in life. Don't break too many hearts. OK? Always keep a smile on your face. See ya around, Luv,

Kristine,
It's been a wild year! Somehow we survived our sophomore year. Thanks for making Spanish II and English bearable. You're a super sweet person and fun to talk to. I'm glad that we became better friends this year. I hope we have all our classes together next year. Have a cool summer and don't get too burned.
Love, Marcia Nicole
